Kornblith,2020-07-31 Improved cancer treatment and survival rates have resulted in a growing number of cancer survivors who live years and even decades after their cancer diagnosis. Insights into what the experience of cancer survivorship looks like and how it can be navigated are much sought after by cancer survivors and their families, loved ones and communities as they chart this unfamiliar and often lonely territory. Approximately 53% of cancer patients are diagnosed when 65 years or older yet no attempt to explore the experience of older cancer survivors has been made. Dr Alice Kornblith, an esteemed social psychologist with extensive experience working with cancer patients, aims to address this need in Older Survivors of Cancer: Feeling Understood by Sharing Experiences. This thoughtful, respectful book seeks to reduce older cancer patients and survivors' feeling of aloneness and of not being understood by sharing narratives of other older cancer survivors' experiences. Narratives were gathered specifically for this book and relate experiences across different cancer diagnostic groups, phases of cancer and gender. Throughout, the reader learns how cancer affected their lives physically, psychologically, spiritually and socially during each phase of their cancer journey. Commentary by Dr Kornblith provides context and lessons learned from the narratives.

Nursing and Midwifery Research Dean Whitehead, Geri LoBiondo-Wood, Judith Haber, 2012-10-30. The new edition upholds the premise that knowledge about research process and design is mandatory in today's health care arena and that all nurses and midwives need to understand research findings and their implication for changing practice. It is completely revised with many new chapters. The text has been restructured into three sections. Section 1: Research Awareness sets the scene for the importance of nursing and midwifery research and provides an overview of research theory and practice as processes. Chapters on searching for and reviewing the literature provide detailed advice for undergraduates and facilitate access to research articles online. One of the new chapters discusses ethical issues in Australia and New Zealand. Section 2: Appreciation and Application provides a detailed discussion of qualitative, quantitative and mixed methods research approaches with many useful examples from the clinical area. Section 3: Conducting primary research is new and is designed to accommodate both undergraduate and postgraduate students in their research effort. Writing research proposals may be a requirement for undergraduates in their research program and postgraduates will find the information useful for undertaking a higher degree or applying for university or external funding. This final Section is also useful as a guide on disseminating and publishing conducted research findings. Combined Australian and New Zealand editorship ensures greater trans-Tasman coverage, awareness and relevance. Contributions from international luminaries are balanced by a heightened focus on research conducted within Australia and New Zealand. New edition conscientiously recognises midwifery research as related to but independent from nursing. The research process-driven approach is directed towards consumers of research and the comprehensive coverage extends from undergraduate through to a postgraduate level of knowledge. Expanded pedagogy includes Key Terms and Learning Outcomes at the beginning of each chapter. Icons throughout that direct readers to web-based material. Evidence-based Tips, Research in Brief boxes and Points to Ponder for constant reinforcement that links evidence to practice Integrated Tutorial Triggers with suggested answers provided and Multiple Choice Questions enable students to assess their understanding of key points Evolve Website provides True False questions and access to journal articles cited in the text with additional reflective questions Chapter 1 The significance of nursing research identifies the current changes in practice and future directions in Australian health care Previous chapters 3 and 4 have been combined to become Chapter 3 Searching and reviewing the literature A detailed discussion of qualitative quantitative and mixed methods research approaches Increased Australian and New Zealand context and research examples More accessible language throughout

Denial and Quality of Life in Lung Cancer Patients Tineke Vos, 2025-10-01 Denial in cancer patients is a well known concept The definition of denial however is not unequivocal and covers different ways of evading painful events or feelings This thesis studies denial and its relation to the quality of life in lung cancer patients To assess the level of denial the Denial of Cancer Interview DCI was developed Denial was measured at different time points in the course of the disease The key finding from this study is that patients fare better when they express a moderate level of denial or increase their level of denial from the moment of diagnosis over time This study shows convincingly that denial in lung cancer patients deserves attention in clinical practice In this era of self disclosure it is good to realize that some patients need protection against unbearable facts and feelings Denial can serve this need and should be respected
