Skilled Interviewing:

Clinical Assessment and Interviewing Skills Prof. Dr. Bilal Semih Bozdemir, To harness the power of nonverbal communication clinicians should employ a few practical strategies during interviews Firstly they should strive for congruence between their verbal and nonverbal messages When both forms of communication align it promotes clarity and trust For instance if a clinician expresses empathy through words their body language such as nodding and maintaining appropriate eye contact should mirror that sentiment Secondly clinicians should engage in active observation and reflection This involves attuning themselves to their clients nonverbal cues and considering their potential meanings Regularly reflecting on these observations can deepen the understanding of the client s emotional states and facilitate more targeted responses Lastly clinicians should remain aware of their own internal biases and preconceptions that may influence their interpretation of nonverbal cues Personal experiences and cultural backgrounds shape how both clinicians and clients express themselves nonverbally Openness to ongoing self reflection can help clinicians mitigate biases and foster more effective communication In conclusion nonverbal communication and body language are foundational elements of clinical interviewing that enrich the clinician client interaction By developing awareness and sensitivity to nonverbal cues clinicians can gain deeper insights into clients emotional states enhance rapport and ultimately facilitate more effective therapeutic outcomes Through training and practice clinicians can hone these skills allowing them to leverage nonverbal communication as a powerful tool in the assessment and therapeutic process
