and June 2023 the study sampled 500 students 250 males and 250 females from government aided and private schools using stratified random sampling Quantitative data were collected via standardized questionnaires and analyzed using descriptive statistics correlation and regression models while qualitative insights were drawn from in depth interviews and open ended survey responses The findings highlight a spectrum of parental pressure experiences revealing its dual role as a motivator and stressor Female students exhibited slightly higher GPAs average 3.35 compared to males average 3.27 indicating nuanced gender specific academic outcomes Moderating factors such as motivation self esteem and coping strategies were critical in shaping academic performance Supportive parental communication and effective coping mechanisms mitigated stress and bolstered scholastic success whereas authoritarian parenting styles correlated with diminished self esteem and maladaptive behaviors These results underscore the need for balanced parental involvement and tailored interventions to foster academic achievement and psychological well being Recommendations for creating supportive academic environments are discussed Keywords Parental pressure academic achievement gender dynamics coping strategies student well being

Developmental Psychopathology, Risk, Resilience, and Intervention Dante Cicchetti, 2016-02-01 Examine the latest research merging nature and nurture in pathological development Developmental Psychopathology is a four volume compendium of the most complete and current research on every aspect of the field Volume Four Genes and Environment focuses on the interplay between nature and nurture throughout the life stages and the ways in which a child's environment can influence his or her physical and mental health as an adult The discussion explores relationships with family friends and the community environmental factors like poverty violence and social support the development of coping mechanisms and more including the impact of these factors on physical brain development This new third edition has been fully updated to incorporate the latest advances and to better reflect the increasingly multilevel and interdisciplinary nature of the field and the growing importance of translational research The relevance of classification in a developmental context is also addressed including DSM 5 criteria and definitions Advances in developmental psychopathology are occurring increasingly quickly as expanding theoretical and empirical work brings about dramatic gains in the multiple domains of child and adult development This book brings you up to date on the latest developments surrounding genetics and environmental influence including their intersection in experience dependent brain development Understand the impact of childhood adversity on adulthood health Gauge the effects of violence poverty interparental conflict and more Learn how peer family and community relationships drive development Examine developments in prevention science and future research priorities Developmental psychopathology is necessarily interdisciplinary as development arises from a dynamic interplay between psychological genetic social cognitive emotional and cultural factors Developmental Psychopathology Volume Four Genes and Environment brings this diverse research together to give you a cohesive picture of the state of knowledge in the field Adolescents and risk Silvia Bonino, Elena Cattellino, Silvia Ciairano, 2006-01-16 Over the past several decades the field of adolescent health and development has undergone a profound and pervasive transformation in the knowledge and understanding of young lives. Popular myths about adolescents that they are hapless victims of raging hormones or risk takers who see themselves as invulnerable have been laid to rest. But even more important has been the emergence of a new scientific perspective about this stage of life. It is a perspective that recognizes that adolescents are active participants in the shaping of their own development; that the influence of context—family, peers, school, media, neighborhood, workplace—is as important in determining the life course as are the attributes of the individual; and indeed that it is the interaction between context and individual attributes that is really crucial. That there is remarkable diversity in the pathways that can be taken by youth as they traverse between late childhood and young adulthood and that the adolescent life stage is itself an extended one—a full decade of the life trajectory with very different tasks, opportunities, and challenges in the later years than in the earlier years. It is this new scientific perspective that so thoroughly informs the present volume by Silvia Bonino, Elena Cattellino, and Silvia Ciairano. The volume is an impressive contribution to understanding risk behavior among contemporary Italian adolescents, but it goes far beyond that to advance understanding of adolescent behavior and development as a whole.

Adolescence and Its Social Worlds Sandy Jackson, Héctor Julio Rodríguez Tomé, 1993. This detailed examination of the variety of the adolescent's social worlds looks at the processes involved in social interactions with specific reference to adolescent development.

Learning from Resilient People Morley D. Glicken, 2006-05-03. Resilience is a human trait that is key to understanding how people successfully cope with crisis and trauma. This book explains the inner self-healing processes of resilient people and helps people training in the helping professions to learn to use these processes in working with their clients.

Stress and Anxiety Petra Buchwald, Tobias Ringeisen, Michael W. Eysenck, 2008. Over the course of a lifetime, people are vulnerable to stress and anxiety in various domains which may lead to impaired well-being and deteriorated health. To address both aspects, this book comprises two parts which deal with stress, anxiety, and coping: 1. over the life span and 2. in the context of health promotion. Part one is concerned with stressful person-environment interactions and the ways stress impact upon individual and group functioning in different life phases. For example, sources of adolescents' stress may include school demands and frustrations due to sexuality, while stress among the elderly might be caused by negative thoughts and feelings about physical deterioration and social isolation. Part two is dedicated to recent research on health promotion. Over time, stress and anxiety may lower resistance and make people more vulnerable to illness. From that perspective, antecedents, side effects, and consequences of stress that may cause limitations in physical and psychological functioning are investigated, leading to a variety of serious health problems.
