Stress and Performance Effectiveness Earl A. Alluisi, Edwin A. Fleishman, 2013-10-28 First published in 1982 This is Volume III of a three volume series and focuses on stress and performance effectiveness This series of volumes reviews the state of the art in several areas of human performance research These areas are human capability assessment information processing and decision making and job stress It was recognized that these have been active research areas but work in these areas has not previously been linked directly to national concerns about productivity The focus is on implications for improving productivity and for recommending research in these areas that should have impact on productivity

Information Processing and Decision Making William Carl Howell, Edwin A. Fleishman, 1982      Human Performance and Productivity Marvin D. Dunnette, Edwin A. Fleishman, 2014-01-14 These volumes represent a concerted attempt to link what is known from human performance research to recognized national needs for improving productivity The product of a National Science Foundation project directed by the series editor the set features authoritative reviews by leading psychologists in the field The volumes cover many areas of human performance not included in other books

Enhancing Human Performance in Security Operations Paul T. Bartone, 2010 A theoretical model of resilience is presented with special reference to the police officer's job The model includes many factors that are addressed throughout the book and provides a useful framework for considering both the selection and the training issues Section II emphasizes scientifically grounded yet practical approaches for selecting training and preparing personnel to function effectively in security operations Section III presents a collection of both case studies and special life threatening scenarios that workers and leaders in security operations may face The training of new police officers in Kosovo and of local demining teams in Sudan and Iraq are addressed including contagion in the use of deadly force by police and security workers      The

Technical Report, 1997      Human Error in Medicine Marilyn Sue Bogner, 2018-02-06 This edited collection of articles addresses aspects of medical care in which human error is associated with unanticipated adverse outcomes For the purposes of this book human error encompasses mismanagement of medical care due to inadequacies or ambiguity in the design of a medical device or institutional setting for the delivery of medical care inappropriate responses to antagonistic environmental conditions such as crowding and excessive clutter in institutional settings extremes in weather or lack of power and water in a home or field setting cognitive errors of omission and commission precipitated by inadequate information and or situational factors stress fatigue excessive cognitive workload The first to address the subject of human error in medicine this book considers the topic from a problem oriented systems perspective that is human error is considered not as the source of the problem but as a flag indicating that a problem exists The focus is on the identification of the factors within the system in which an error occurs that contribute to the problem of human error As those factors are identified efforts to alleviate them can be instituted and reduce the likelihood of error in medical care Human error occurs in all aspects of human activity and can have particularly grave consequences when it occurs in medicine Nearly everyone at some point in life will be the recipient of medical care and has the possibility of experiencing the consequences of medical error The consideration of human error in medicine is important because of the number of people that are affected the problems incurred by such error and the societal impact of such problems The cost of those consequences to the individuals involved in medical error both in the health care providers concern and the patients emotional and physical pain the cost of care to alleviate the consequences of the error and the cost to society in dollars and in lost personal contributions mandates consideration of ways to reduce the likelihood of human error in medicine The chapters were written by leaders in a variety of fields including psychology medicine engineering cognitive science human factors gerontology and nursing Their experience was gained through actual hands on provision of medical care and or research into factors contributing to error in such care Because of the experience of the chapter authors their systematic consideration of the issues in this book affords the reader an insightful applied approach to human error in medicine an approach fortified by academic discipline Psychopathology in the Workplace
