Stress And Teaching:

Breakdown John Cosgrove, 2002-01-04 Between 1989 and 1999 half the teachers in England and Wales quit their posts By the late nineties more than six thousand teachers a year were retiring early on grounds of ill health In recent years hardly a school in the country has not lost at least one teacher because of a nervous breakdown Breakdown looks at what is happening in teaching today Why breakdowns have become so common what it means to suffer a breakdown and the consequences of this epidemic for schools and children It suggests what teachers can do to help themselves what schools should do to help their staff and the ways in which the local authorities can offer practical support Stress in Teaching Margaret Johnstone, 1989 This booklet provides a succinct survey of studies on stress in relation to teaching centering around British research It provides a comprehensive guide to how stress in teaching has been studied and the conclusions reached Topics covered are 1 what is stress 2 what are the causes of stress in teaching 3 how prevalent is stress in teaching 4 who is stressed and 5 what are the effects of stress and how can teachers cope Each chapter provides a summary note on the topic research findings on the topics and a final comment Over 150 citations are listed in the bibliography JD

Teaching and Stress Martin Cole, Stephen Walker, 1989 Stress and Teaching Kevin J. Swick, 1989 This monograph explores three particular emphases 1 stress occurs within an ecological system 2 individuals need to be skilled self managers in dealing with their stress ecology and 3 teachers are the initial source and ultimate controller of their stress system Integrated with these emphases are such topics as the ecology of teacher stress teachers as sources of stress stress as motivation for growth symptoms and indicators of burnout knowing stress management and the role of professional growth in stress prevention resolution JD Primary Teachers' Stress Geoff Troman, Peter Woods, 2001 The findings inform policy recommendations aimed at preventing at source occupational stress in teaching and other caring professions as well as offering advice to individuals suffering from stress Jacket Teachers Under Pressure Cary Cooper, Cheryl Travers, 2012-12-06 Our education system has undergone a process of enormous and rapid change and all too often teachers have found that insufficient support has been offered to help them cope with this As a result most teachers now find that they experience stress of one sort or another at some point during their careers As a direct reaction to this the National Association of Schoolmasters and Union of Women Teachers NASUWT have commissioned a comprehensive study of the issue of teacher stress This book reports on the findings of that study and the implications this has not only for teachers but also for the pupils they teach Cary Cooper and Cheryl Travers book helps to identify which teachers are currently at risk of stress explores how teacher s problems vary according to where they work their grade whether they are male or female and the age range they teach suggests ways in which the problems of teachers can be helped suggests preventative action to minimise stress and maximise educational experience Educator Stress Teresa Mendonça McIntyre, Scott E. McIntyre, David J. Francis, 2017-08-28 This book brings together the most current thinking and research on educator stress and how education systems can support quality teachers and quality education. It adopts an occupational health perspective to examine the problem of educator stress and presents theory-driven intervention strategies to reduce stress load and support educator resilience and healthy school organizations. The book provides an international perspective on key challenges facing educators such as teacher stress, teacher retention, training effective teachers, teacher accountability, cyber bullying in schools, and developing healthy school systems. Divided into four parts, the book starts out by introducing and defining the problem of educator stress internationally and examining educator stress in the context of school education system and education policy factors. Part I includes chapters on educator mental health and well-being, stress-related biological vulnerabilities, the relation of stress to teaching self-efficacy, turnover in charter schools, and the role of culture in educator stress. Part II reviews the main conceptual models that explain educator stress while applying an occupational health framework to education contexts, which stresses the role of organizational factors including work organization and work practices. It ends with a proposal of a dynamic integrative theory of educator stress which highlights the changing nature of educator stress with time and context. Part III starts with the definition of what constitute healthy school organizations as a backdrop to the following chapters which review the application of occupational health psychology theories and intervention approaches to reducing educator stress, promoting teacher resources, and developing healthy school systems. Chapters include interventions at the individual, individual-organizational interface, and organizational levels. Part III ends with a chapter addressing cyber bullying, a new challenge affecting schools and teachers. Part IV discusses the implications for research, practice, and policy in education, including teacher training and development. In addition, it presents a review of methodological issues facing researchers on educator stress and identifies future trends for research on this topic, including the use of ecological momentary assessment in educator stress research. The editors' concluding comments reflect upon the application of an occupational health perspective to advance research, practice, and policy directed at reducing stress in educators and promoting teacher and school well-being.

Stress in Teachers Jack Dunham, Ved Prakash Varma, 1998-08-10. Examines the stress in teaching from a multidisciplinary concept broad enough to include physiological, psychological, organisational, and legal perspectives. The editors see stress in teaching as an interactionist concept, a complex and sometimes precarious balance between perceived work pressures, coping strategies, and stress reactions. The early chapters in the book reflect this view and make contributions to understanding the causes and costs of stress in teaching. The authors of these chapters come collectively to the conclusion that there is an alarmingly low level of job satisfaction in teaching and that turnover intentions appear to be on the increase. This pessimistic view is challenged in later chapters by professionals working in the field of stress management. These contributions highlight the danger of focusing stress research and management on the individual rather than the organization and report the authors' hands-on knowledge of teacher support teams and workshop and whole school approaches to diminishing the causes and costs of teacher stress and improving training and career development The concluding chapters demonstrate the editors belief that useful insights for workers in the education service can be gained from studies of workplace stress in other occupations Crisis in Education Barry A. Farber, Leonard D.

Wechsler, 1991-03-11 Without question Farber's book on teacher burnout is the most comprehensive analytic and instructive book on the topic and I urge the reader to study it Seymour B Sarason author The Predictable Failure of Educational Reform
