can be mild to severe and can range from unsuccessfully longing for maternal milk in infancy to recklessly wiggling on a motorbike to be on time to watch the NBA finals on TV to breaking up a relationship All those events that we call stress have the capability of perturbing a given state of psychological and physiological equilibrium and moving it to a different level The transition from crawling to walking has to be considered a form of stress as much as losing a job It is through a continuous cross talk between environmental stressors and individual adaptations that we build our personalities and our ways to cope with daily hassles External challenges should not necessarily be regarded as bad but instead seen as constructive forces forming our ability to navigate a changing world What is stress good for What is stress bad for When and why do we need to be stressed Should we worry about stress When does stress equate to normality When does it turn into pathology We hope with this book to provide some answers to these fundamental questions Action and Self-Development Richard M.
