Handbook of Landscape Archaeology Bruno David, Julian Thomas, 2016-06-03 Over 80 archaeologists from four continents create a benchmark volume of the ideas and practices of landscape archaeology covering the theoretical and the practical the research and conservation and encasing the term in a global framework Early Christian Ireland T. M. Charles-Edwards, 2000-11-30 A fully documented history of Ireland and the Irish from the fifth to the ninth centuries The Social Context of Technology Leo Webley, Sophia Adams, Joanna Bruck, 2020-06-30 The Social Context of Technology explores non ferrous metalworking in Britain and Ireland during the Bronze and Iron Ages c 2500 BC to 1st century AD Bronze working dominates the evidence though the crafting of other non ferrous metals including gold silver tin and lead is also considered Metalwork has long played a central role in accounts of European later prehistory Metals were important for making functional tools and elaborate decorated objects that were symbols of prestige Metalwork could be treated in special or ritualised ways by being accumulated in large hoards or placed in rivers or bogs But who made these objects Prehistoric smiths have been portrayed by some as prosaic technicians and by others as mystical figures akin to magicians They have been seen both as independent travelling entrepreneurs and as the dependents of elite patrons Hitherto these competing models have not been tested through a comprehensive assessment of the archaeological evidence for metalworking This volume fills that gap with analysis focused on metalworking tools and waste such as crucibles moulds casting debris and smithing implements The find contexts of these objects are examined both to identify places where metalworking occurred and to investigate the cultural practices behind the deposition of metalworking debris The key questions are what was the social context of this craft and what was its ideological significance How did this vary regionally and change over time As well as elucidating a key aspect of later prehistoric life in Britain and Ireland this important examination by leading scholars contributes to broader debates on material culture and the social role of craft Royal Inauguration in Gaelic Ireland C. 1100-1600 Elizabeth FitzPatrick, 2004 An investigation of the places in the Irish landscape where open air Gaelic royal inauguration assemblies were held from the twelfth to the sixteenth centuries This investigation considers the places on the Irish landscape where open air Gaelic royal inauguration assemblies were held in the period c 1100 1600 Specially designated inauguration sites played an important role in the political life of Gaelic lordships in later medieval Ireland Gaelic ruling families often appropriated prehistoric ritual landscapes for their royal assemblies in order to attach the pedigree of a royal candidate to an illustrious past such sites might be an alleged burial place of an eponymous ancestor or a legendary heroic figure or an ancient landscape associated with renowned events This study of their physical appearance place names and geographical and historical contexts ranges over all the archaeological sites identified as inauguration places enclosures sepulchral mounds natural places ringforts and churches and associated inauguration furniture in the form of leaca and stone thrones basin stones and sacred trees Irish royal assembly places and practices are viewed in relation to sites elsewhere in

Britain and greater Europe and the circumstances that brought about the ending of the Gaelic practice of inauguration are also considered ELIZABETH FitzPATRICK is Lecturer in Medieval Archaeology National University of Ireland Galway
