

HOW CLOSE IS A RIGHT STANCE?

Usually, you will be with your left foot after first having shot a right jabbed.

Keep the right hand moving. Don't hold it motionless. Let a fighter in and out for the longer of a probe ready to strike. Move off, always forward and carry your shoulders.

Turn the right side, stepping out with the right foot simultaneously. Before it reaches its mark (beating the right of the opponent), draw your left foot straight out without pulling it back over a fraction and leave your body to the right, pointing on the side of your left foot. As you strike, get plenty of push and snap from the left side of your body, up from the feet, through the legs and torso, and make sure it is supported off by plenty of snap from your left shoulder. The power is accentuated by the combination of the whole body in the follow-through. Keep interested at all times.

It should be noted that the left (or rear) foot is often a counterblow. Sometimes it is better to beat the opponent into leading to shoot the left as a counter. There the blow is delivered perfectly straight during the opponent's lead at your feet. The step needs a right foot, after which it is to the side your left shoulder and shoot the left, meanwhile keeping an eye on the left or getting a step to it with your right. Your head must be tilted forward and to the right, to avoid the opponent's right foot (keep your eyes on head), but the back must be very slight, and sufficient to avoid being hit. The left hand, back opponent, should just show the opponent's elbow before his foot is straightened and the swing of the body on the hips. Your left is right, should be executed by jerking back the right elbow and shoulder.

A generally makes your rear coming in and lands on the angle of the jaw. Do not shoot hit at the head, however. Aim toward the center line to shoot through the opponent.

Try two right hands to force your left straight.

Sometimes, move over a little further to the right and shoot the straight left back to aim in a slight upward direction.

The Hook

The hook is more effective as a counterblow. It is never a wide, looping blow, but a more like a knee, very, strong punch. Remember the point is the hip, footback makes the punch.

Good "stepping" (hook and pull) is the ready position. It must begin from the original position for proper description. The hand is near palm back or forward. Always get in front first to get your distance and leverage.

When using a hook hook, always keep your rear hand high as a shield for your face. Your rear elbow protects your ribs on that side.

The Horizontal Hook

The hook is executed slowly on the small punching bag. Try to execute slowly without touching the body out of shape and be ready to follow up with more punches.

Lead Hook

The more versatile the fighter—the more alert mentally and the more agile physically—the more apt he is to show the most contribution from the most impossible angles.

The lead hook should be used judiciously. It is most effective when going in or coming out and is easily repulsed or over-reaching straight or against swings.

The body is the center target for the straight because it covers a far larger surface than the jaw and is less mobile.

Who Wrote the Tao? The Literary Sourcebook to the Tao of Jeet Kune Do James Bishop, 2023-03-28. Who Wrote the Tao: The Literary Sourcebook to the Tao of Jeet Kune Do reveals for the first time the hidden sources and origins of Bruce Lee's most famous book.

Bruce Lee's Fighting Method Bruce Lee, M. Uyehara, 1977. The legendary fighter demonstrates simple effective methods for dodging and deflecting incoming blows, offers invaluable advice for improving the speed, power, and accuracy of your kicks and punches, and shows you how to eliminate bad habits from your training. As the third volume in the Bruce Lee's Fighting Method series, this manual contains detailed illustrations and vintage photos capturing Lee in his prime. This essential series, compiled and organized by his close friend Mito Uyehara, is the perfect companion to Bruce Lee's classic text Tao of Jeet Kune Do.

Jeet Kune Do: The Way of Zen Tom, 2012-03-13. Apply the combat science of Bruce Lee's revolutionary martial art. This martial arts manual describes his research into the how and why of Jeet Kune Do techniques. Bruce Lee wrote of three stages of cultivation that lie along the path to JKD mastery: The Stage of Innocence (this is the level of the absolute beginner), The Stage of Art (the student is immersed in the process of technical and physical training), and The Stage of Artlessness (the stage of highest art in which the body is no longer hindered by the mind). As Bruce Lee would say, "It hits all by itself." To reach the final stage, the student must progress methodically through the Stage of Art; there are no shortcuts. Author Teri Tom guides you on this journey by revealing the science behind the moves in Jeet Kune Do repertoire. You'll learn how to protect yourself from injury and maximize the effectiveness of the following core techniques and their variations: Straight Lead, Rear Cross Hook, Uppercut, Straight Kick, Hook Kick, Side Kick, and Spinning Back Kick. You'll also learn about Bruce Lee's revolutionary approach to combat that takes advantage of human biomechanics, how to evade attacks and use those evasive movements to launch counterattacks, natural ways to chain your moves into seamless combinations, the importance of developing mental and physical speed, footwork, cadence, good timing, and judgment of distance. All techniques are traced to the original sources that inspired Bruce Lee.
