Perspective Bernard Grofman, Alexander H. Trechsel, Mark Franklin, 2014-07-08 This volume provides an important update to our current understanding of politics and the internet in a variety of new contexts both geographically and institutionally The subject of e democracy has morphed over the years from speculative and optimistic accounts of a future heightened direct citizen involvement in political decision making and an increasingly withered state apparatus to more prosaic investigations of party and governmental website content and micro level analyses of voters online activities Rather than levelling the communications and participation playing field most studies concluded that existing patterns of bias and power distribution were being repeated online with the one exception of a genuine change in the potential for protest and e activism Across all of these accounts the question remains whether the internet is a levelling communication tool that elevates the profile of marginalised players in the political system or whether it is a medium that simply reinforces existing power and participatory biases While employing case studies from various global perspectives this book investigates the role of digital media and competitive advantage campaigns and the effect of social media online communication as way of fomenting nonviolent revolutions and the undeniable and important role of the internet on democracy around the world The

Data Protection in the Internet Dário Moura Vicente, Sofia de Vasconcelos Casimiro, 2019-12-01 This book identifies and explains the different national approaches to data protection the legal regulation of the collection storage transmission and use of information concerning identified or identifiable individuals and determines the extent to which they could be harmonised in the foreseeable future In recent years data protection has become a major concern in many countries as well as at supranational and international levels In fact the emergence of computing technologies that allow lower cost processing of increasing amounts of information associated with the advent and exponential use of the Internet and other communication networks and the widespread liberalization of the trans border flow of information have enabled the large scale collection and processing of personal data not only for scientific or commercial uses but also for political uses A growing number of governmental and private organizations now possess and use data processing in order to determine predict and influence individual behavior in all fields of human activity This inevitably entails new risks from the perspective of individual privacy but also other fundamental rights such as the right not to be discriminated against fair competition between commercial enterprises and the proper functioning of democratic institutions These phenomena have not been ignored from a legal point of view at the national supranational and international levels an increasing number of regulatory instruments including the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation applicable as of 25 May 2018 have been adopted with the purpose of preventing personal data misuse Nevertheless distinct national approaches still prevail in this domain notably those that separate the comprehensive and detailed protective rules adopted in Europe since the 1995 Directive on the processing of personal data from the more fragmented and liberal attitude of American courts and legislators in this respect In a globalized world in which personal data can instantly circulate and be used simultaneously in communications networks that are ubiquitous by nature these different national and regional approaches are a major source of legal conflict
