Constructing Professional Discourse Concepción Orna-Montesinos, 2012-01-17 This book explores the fascinating role that language plays in the construction of non verbal objects by mapping out the ontological meaning of the specialised concepts and the domain specific knowledge embedded in them In doing so it provides a comprehensive linguistic insight into the discourse of professional domain specific communities and hence into the communication practices and procedures of those communities In this respect the book offers a response to the claims made by many of the most influential applied linguists today such as Vijay Bhatia 1993 2004 John Swales 1990 2004 or Ken Hyland 2002 among others who have consistently defended the need for applied linguistic research into the textual generic and social perspectives on the under researched interrelatedness of the discursive and professional practices of a discipline Specifically this book provides readers with an integrative multi perspective approach to the study of professional domain specific discourses While it mainly draws on the tenets of genre theory and discourse semantics it also nurtures from the theoretical and empirical foundations of applied linguistics cognitive linguistics corpus linguistics and ontological engineering The book starts from the analysis of domain specific texts as final written products with specific lexico grammatical semantic and rhetorical features to later enquire into the written products as textual artefacts closely linked to the social context of production and interpretation of the text This integrative approach provides fresh new insights into the way the processes of writing are affected by the community specific institutional and socio historical circumstances in which domain specific texts are produced America

Goes Green Kim Kennedy White, 2012-11-12 This three volume encyclopedia explores the evolution of green ideology and eco friendly practices in contemporary American culture ranging from the creation of regional and national guidelines for green living to the publication of an increasing number of environmental blogs written from the layperson s perspective Evidence of humanity s detrimental impact on the environment is mounting As Americans we are confronted daily with news stories blogs and social media commentary about the necessity of practicing green behaviors to offset environmental damage This essential reference is a fascinating review of the issues surrounding green living including the impact of this lifestyle on Americans time and money the information needed to adhere to green principles in the 21st century and case studies and examples of successful implementation America Goes Green An Encyclopedia of Eco Friendly Culture in the United States examines this gripping topic through 3 volumes organized by A Z entries across 11 themes state by state essays grouped by region and references including primary source documents bibliography glossary and green resources This timely encyclopedia explores the development of an eco friendly culture in America and entries present the debates viewpoints and challenges of green living City of Layers Mark Urizar, 2012-04-20 Society seems to be tied irrevocably to long term patterns of resource use and to producing unassimilatable waste emissions and ongoing environmental degradation There also are seemingly irresolvable dilemmas between humanity and nature society and ecology and utility and beauty where each decision we make seems to cause some harm To change from our present path and resolve these we must have the courage to break from traditions and use our knowhow to progressively and creatively enhance the existing built form so a new built reality emerges one that enriches people and possibly enables a sustainable future This alternate path necessitates a holistic approach one that can more effectively merge and better utilise the disciplines of architecture engineering art sciences and business to integrate the many different parts within the built environment and produce a vibrant viable new whole With this approach we could begin to transform the built environment into an entity that virtually replicates and functions as a natural sustainable system Every decision we make is important What practices processes technologies are applied to how built elements are designed placed structured configured and interfaced are all important These determine what eventuates the built form architecture and the ultimate appropriateness of the resulting outcome By determining what is appropriate this book provides a retrospective view of the semi static present built environment with its many in place processes issues constraints and opportunities and postulates what is required by visualising the possible alternatives for the always growing built environment These provide a useful insight into how the built form and urban life can be enhanced and thereby also how humanity can use architecture to live in a more equitable balance possibly in harmony and sustainably with nature

Place-making and Urban Development Pier Carlo Palermo, Davide Ponzini, 2014-12-05 The regeneration of critical urban areas through the redesign of public space with the intense involvement of local communities seems to be the central focus of place making according to some widespread practices in academic and professional circles Recently new expertise maintains that place making could be an innovative and potentially autonomous field competing with more traditional disciplines like urban planning urban design architecture and others This book affirms that the question of making better places for people should be understood in a broader sense as a symptom of the non contingent limitations of the urban and spatial disciplines It maintains that research should not be oriented only towards new technical or merely formal solutions but rather towards the profound rethinking of disciplinary paradigms In the fields of urban planning urban design and policy making the challenge of place making provides scholars and practitioners a great opportunity for a much needed critical review Only the substantial reappraisal of long standing technical cultural institutional and social premises and perspectives can truly improve place making practices The pressing need for place making implies trespassing undue disciplinary boundaries and experimenting a place based approach that can innovate and integrate planning regulations strategic spatial visioning and urban development projects Moreover the place making challenge compels urban experts and policy makers to critically reflect upon the physical and social contexts of their interventions In this sense facing place making today is a way to renew the civic and social role of urban planning and urban design
