Living Law Roger Cotterrell, 2017-07-05 Living Law presents a comprehensive overview of relationships between legal and social theory and of current approaches to the sociological study of legal ideas It explores the nature of legal theory and sociolegal studies today as teaching and research fields and the work of many of the major sociolegal theorists In addition it sets out the author's distinctive approach to sociological analysis of law applying this in a range of studies in specific legal fields such as the law of contract property and trusts constitutional analysis and comparative law

Is Democracy a Lost Cause? Alfio Mastropaolo, 2024-08-22 Is Democracy a Lost Cause explores the current debate on democracy It starts by discussing the meaning of democracy and how the understanding of this important political concept has either broadened or contracted depending on changing political circumstances

Mastropaolo then poses the question of what it means for democracy to be the government of the people. He deals with the way in which democratic government has been affected by changes in the fabric of society by the evolution of democratic theory itself and by the transformations affecting the state and political parties. Political class and citizens' attitudes towards democratic politics increasingly characterised by resentment and often taking the form of an anti politics are analysed in the concluding chapters.

The World We Want Robert B. Loudon, 2010-03-16 The World We Want compares the future world that Enlightenment intellectuals had hoped for with our own world at present. In what respects do the two worlds differ and why are they so different? To what extent is and isn't our world the world they wanted and to what extent do we today still want their world? Unlike previous philosophical critiques and defenses of the Enlightenment, the present study focuses extensively on the relevant historical and empirical record, first by examining carefully what kind of future Enlightenment intellectuals actually hoped for, second by tracking the different legacies of their central ideals over the past two centuries. But in addition to documenting the significant gap that still exists between Enlightenment ideals and current realities, the author also attempts to show why the ideals of the Enlightenment still elude us. What does our own experience tell us about the appropriateness of these ideals? Which Enlightenment ideals do not fit with human nature? Why is meaningful support for these ideals particularly within the US so weak at present? Which of the means that Enlightenment intellectuals advocated for realizing their ideals are inefficacious? Which of their ideals have devolved into distorted versions of themselves when attempts have been made to realize them? How and why, after more than two centuries, have we still failed to realize the most significant Enlightenment ideals? In short, what is dead and what is living in these ideals.

Engaging Environmental Education, 2010-01-01 As more attention is devoted to the increasing and complex socio-ecological issues facing the planet, new insights and new ways of thinking are being sought about the learning and agency of children and adults in relation to these environmental concerns. The contributors to this book address the critically important dual challenge of making environmental education engaging while engaging individuals, institutions, and communities. Rather than treating students and citizens as passive recipients of other people's knowledge, the book highlights the importance of engaging learners as active agents in thinking about and constructing a more sustainable and equitable quality of life. The case studies emphasize socio-cultural approaches to environmental learning within and outside formal education in a diverse range of international contexts, including Canada, Denmark, Korea, the Netherlands, South Africa, Sweden, the United Kingdom, and the United States. The authors not only illuminate the challenges and complexity of engaging youth and adults in meaningful learning as well as informed action on complex environmental issues but also document and offer important insights into promising ways in which these challenges might be addressed. In addition to the many stimulating ideas and strategies for building the learning capacities of individuals and organizations for creating ecologically sustainable communities and societies, further important questions are raised that educators, policymakers, and researchers might consider.

Global Citizenship Education and the

Crises of Multiculturalism Massimiliano Tarozzi, Carlos Alberto Torres, 2016-08-11 The notion of global citizenship education GCE has emerged in the international education discourse in the context of the United Nations Education First Initiative that cites developing global citizens as one of its goals In this book the authors argue that GCE offers a new educational perspective for making sense of the existing dilemmas of multiculturalism and national citizenship deficits in diverse societies taking into account equality human rights and social justice The authors explore how teaching and research may be implemented relating to the notion of global citizenship and discuss the intersections between the framework of GCE and multiculturalism They address the three main topics which affect education in multicultural societies and in a globalized world and which represent unsolved dilemmas the issue of diversity in relation to creating citizens the issue of equality and social justice in democratic societies and the tension between the global and the local in a globalized world Through a comparative study of the two prevailing approaches intercultural education within the European Union and multicultural education in the United States the authors seek what can be learned from each model Global Citizenship Education and the Crises of Multiculturalism offers not only a unifying theoretical framework but also a set of policy recommendations aiming to link the two approaches

The Friendly Liquidation of the Past Donna Lee Van Cott, 2012-02-15 Constitutional reform has been one of the most significant aspects of democratization in late twentieth century Latin America In The Friendly Liquidation of the Past one of the first texts to examine this issue comprehensively Van Cott focuses on the efforts of Bolivia and Colombia to incorporate ethnic rights into their fragile democracies In the 1990s political leaders and social movements in Bolivia and Colombia expressed dissatisfaction with the quality of democracy its exclusionary nature the distance and illegitimacy of the state and the empty promise of citizenship The highly symbolic act of constitution making elevated a public struggle for rights to the level of a discussion on the meaning of democracy and the nature of the state Based on interviews with more than 100 participants in the reforms Van Cott demonstrates how issues promoted by social movements recognizing ethnic diversity expanding political participation and improving representation and creating spheres of cultural and territorial autonomy were placed on the constitutional reform agenda and transformed through strategic interaction with political power brokers into the nation's highest law The analysis follows each reform through five years of implementation to assess the early results of what Van Cott suggests is an emerging regional model of multicultural constitutionalism The Friendly Liquidation of the Past fills an important gap in the study of ethnic politics and constitutional reform in the Andes linking the literature on institutions and political reform to work in political theory on participatory democracy and multiculturalism
