Smallholders, Forest Management and Rural Development in the Amazon Benno Pokorny,2013-07-24 The ongoing debate concerning the Amazon s crucial role in global climate and biodiversity is entirely dependent upon sustainable development in the region Recognizing that forests are an integral part of the social fabric in the region initiatives such as community forestry small scale tree plantations and agroforestry as well as payments for environmental services have aimed at conserving the natural forest landscape At the same time these attempt to protect and enhance the well being of poor local smallholders including indigenous groups traditional communities and small farmers Against this background this book analyses numerous promising local tree and forest management initiatives taken by smallholders in the Bolivian Brazilian Ecuadorian and Peruvian Amazon to better understand the key success factors The insights gained from more than 100 case studies analyzed by researchers from Latin America and Europe in cooperation with local stakeholders reveal the need for critical reflection on the initiatives targeting poor Amazonian families The book discusses an operational vision of rural development grounded on the effective use of smallholders capacities to contribute to a sustainable and equitable development of the region It provides helpful information and ideas not only for scientists but also for development organisations decision makers and all who are interested in one of the major challenges facing the Amazon to combine equitable development with the conservation of its unique ecosystems

The Economics of Deforestation in the Amazon João S. Campari,2005-01-01 This provocative new book presents the results of twenty years of research on deforestation in the Amazon By carefully observing the changing character of human settlements and their association with deforestation over such a prolonged period the author is able to reject much of the perceived wisdom

Sustaining Forests World Bank,2004-05-01 The World Bank s Forests Strategy adopted in October 2002 charts a path for the Bank s proactive engagement in the sector to help attain the goal of poverty reduction without jeopardizing the environmental values intrinsic to sustainability This strategy replaces the Bank s 1991 Forestry Strategy and was developed on the basis of the findings of an independent review of the 1991 strategy and a two year consultative process with development partners and stakeholders around the world The revised strategy Sustaining Forests is built on three guiding pillars harnessing the potential of forests to reduce poverty integrating forests into sustainable economic development and protecting global forest values Recognizing the key role forests play in contributing to the livelihoods of people living in extreme poverty government and local ownership of forest policies and interventions are emphasized along with the development of appropriate institutions to ensure good governance and the mainstreaming of forests into national development planning The strategy also aims to support ecologically socially and economically sound management of production forests by ensuring good management practices through application of safeguard procedures and independent monitoring and certification Implementation of the strategy will center on building and strengthening partnerships with the private sector non governmental organizations and other donor agencies to promote better forest conservation and management at country and global levels

Managing a Global Resource Uma J. Lele, 2017-07-12 The rapid loss of tropical forests particularly in the developing world has been a global concern since the late 1980s and has prompted a variety of international initiatives to save the forests In 1991 the World Bank responded to global concerns and to criticism by nongovernmental organizations by forming a conservation oriented forest strategy Managing a Global Resource is an outgrowth of the independent evaluation conducted by the World Bank's Operations Evaluation Department and discusses how effectively that strategy was implemented In this detailed investigation Uma J Lele explores why the loss of forests and biodiversity has been so rapid in some developing countries Brazil Indonesia and Cameroon and not in others China India and Costa Rica She assesses future prospects for conservation in these six countries by critically examining their policies institutional arrangements and emerging national and international instruments to conserve forests and biodiversity Together these six countries account for 25 percent of the world's forest cover and 44 percent of the world's population Managing a Global Resource presents case studies of the forest sectors of each country in the context of overall development policies interest groups and governance issues Lele's investigation finds a fundamental divergence in forest rich countries between the global objectives of conservation and the local objectives of development and private profit In some forest poor countries in contrast natural resource loss has led the countries on their own accord to adopt a variety of conservation oriented policies and programs Despite the greater congruence between the global and national objectives in these forest poor countries competing demands on their resources and the constraints on their policies institutions and human capital make it difficult for them to affect forest and biodiversity conservation This volume makes it clear that

Forest Science Elias Costa de Souza, Subramanian Senthilkannan Muthu, 2023-07-24 This book highlights the sustainability aspects of products and processes in forest science The forest products sector supplies raw materials to several industrial sectors worldwide These products can be classified as timber or non timber products Wood products are those that originate from the woody fraction and can include pulp charcoal firewood and others The non timber products on the other hand have the products extracted from the different parts of the tree such as bark leaves fruits resins oils tannins or even products extracted from non woody biomass such as palm heart or carnauba among others There are new studies and new products developed from forests worldwide each day However studies that evaluate the sustainability of these products and the processes related to their production are not so common It is essential to highlight the sustainability aspects of these activities and the products obtained from them such that steps can be taken to make the processes eco friendly Allied to ecological sustainability studies that evaluate the technical and economic feasibility of such activities arise With this book the authors through the approach of other products and processes of forest science present the practical vision of aligning production with sustainability in an economically viable way The book analyses different products and processes ranging from technological production of engineered wood products to handcrafted resins with a high commercial appeal With the expertise of different authors who are researchers in various specific areas of forest sciences this book helps expand research and presents new insights assisting industry decision makers and researchers working in the areas forest sciences
