The Architectural Interpretation Of History:

The Architectural Interpretation of History John Gloag, 1975 Interpretation in Architecture Adrian Snodgrass, Richard Coyne, 2013-05-13 Drawing on cultural theory phenomenology and concepts from Asian art and philosophy this book reflects on the role of interpretation in the act of architectural creation bringing an intellectual and scholarly dimension to real world architectural design practice For practising architects as well as academic researchers these essays consider interpretation from three theoretical standpoints or themes play edification and otherness Focusing on these the book draws together strands of thought informed by the diverse reflections of hermeneutical scholarship the uses of digital media and studio teaching and practice History Beyond the Text Sarah Barber, Corinna Peniston-Bird, 2013-02-01 Historians are increasingly looking beyond the traditional and turning to visual oral aural and virtual sources to inform their work The challenges these sources pose require new skills of interpretation and require historians to consider alternative theoretical and practical approaches In order to help historians successfully move beyond traditional text Sarah Barber and Corinna Peniston Bird bring together chapters from historical specialists in the fields of fine art photography film oral history architecture virtual sources music cartoons landscape and material culture to explain why when and how these less traditional sources can be used Each chapter introduces the reader to the source suggests the methodological and theoretical questions historians should keep in mind when using it and provides case studies to illustrate best practice in analysis and interpretation Pulling these disparate sources together the introduction discusses the nature of historical sources and those factors which are unique to and shared by the sources covered throughout the book Taking examples from around the globe this collection of essays aims to inspire practitioners of history to expand their horizons and incorporate a wide variety of primary sources in their work The Architectural Review , 1909 Baghdad: An Urban History through the Lens of Literature Iman Al-Attar, 2018-09-03 In recent years Baghdad has been viewed as a battleground for political conflicts this interpretation has heavily influenced writings on the city This book moves away from these perspectives to present an interdisciplinary exploration into the urban history of Baghdad through the lens of literature It argues that urban literature is an effective complementary source to conventional historiography using in depth analysis of texts poems and historical narratives of non monumental urban spaces to reveal an underexamined facet of the city s development The book focuses on three key themes spatial nostalgic and reflective to offer a new approach to the study of Baghdad s history with a view to establishing and informing further strategies for future urban developments Beginning with the first planned city in the eighth century it looks at the urban transformations that influenced building trends and architectural styles until the nineteenth century It will appeal to academics and researchers in interdisciplinary fields such as architecture urban history Islamic studies and Arabic literature The Architect : Chapters in the History of the Profession Berkeley Spiro Kostof Professor of Architectural History University of California, 1977-01-06 How did architects get to be architects in any given period in history How were they trained How did they find their clients and communicate with them What did society think of them Spiro Kostof's The Architect a collection of essays by historians and architects explores these and other intriguing questions about the profession of architecture The first book in more than fifty years to survey the profession from its beginnings in ancient Egypt to the modern day it is the most complete synthesis to date of our knowledge of how the architect's profession developed Included are a major study of the Beaux Arts a vivid memoir by the distinguished architect Joseph Esherick and an excellent chapter on women which demonstrates how the ethic of professionalism has contributed to the exploitation of women in this as in many other professions The Architect places the current dilemma about the architect's role in society in historical perspective and offers a good overview of the development of one of the world's oldest professions The Mental Life of the Architectural Historian Gevork Hartoonian, 2014-08-11 Starting with the question concerning the discursive formation of architectural history the chapters compiled in this book attempt to re-read the historiography of early modern architecture from the point of view of the theoretical work produced since the post-war era Central to the objectives of the argument are the ways in which firstly architectural history differs from the traditions of art history and secondly that the historical narrative works its autonomy through theoretical representation the discursive flow of which is interrupted by the historian's urge to support arguments with references to buildings texts drawings and historical events The historians discussed in this volume are those regularly addressed by most critics revisiting modern architectural history Individual chapters are dedicated to N Pevsner H R Hitchcock and S Giedion an economy of selection that is formative for a critical understanding of the canon established by these historians Themes such as periodization autonomy and time are discussed and the coda of the final chapter expands on the scope of critical historiography popularised by Kenneth Frampton and Manfredo Tafuri Writing Architectural History Aggregate Architectural History Collaborative, 2021-12-14 Over the past two decades scholarship in architectural history has transformed moving away from design studio pedagogy and postmodern historicism to draw instead from trends in critical theory focusing on gender race the environment and more recently global history connecting to revisionist trends in other fields With examples across space and time from medieval European coin trials and eighteenth century Haitian revolutionary buildings to Weimar German construction firms and present day African refugee camps Writing Architectural History considers the impact of these shifting institutional landscapes and disciplinary positionings for architectural history Contributors reveal how new methodological approaches have developed interdisciplinary research beyond the traditional boundaries of art history departments and architecture schools and explore the challenges and opportunities presented by conventional and unorthodox forms of evidence and narrative the tools used to write history Reading Architectural History Dana Arnold, 2003-09-02 Architectural history is more than just the study of buildings Architecture of the past and present remains an essential emblem of a distinctive social system and set of cultural values and as a result it has been the subject of study of a variety of disciplines But what is architectural history and how should we read it Reading Architectural History examines the historiographic and socio cultural implications of the mapping of British architectural history with particular reference to eighteenth and nineteenth century Britain Discursive essays consider a range of writings from biographical and social histories to visual surveys and guidebooks to examine the narrative structures of histories of architecture and their impact on perception and understanding of the architecture of the past Alongside this each chapter cites canonical histories juxtaposed with a range of social and cultural theorists to reveal that these writings are richer than we have perhaps recognised and that architectural production in this period can be interrogated in the same way as that from more recent past and can be read in a variety of ways The essays and texts combine to form an essential course reader for methods and critical approaches to architectural history and more generally as examples of the kind of evidence used in the formation of architectural histories while also offering a thematic introduction to architecture in Britain and its social and cultural meaning
