Stendhal Ecrivains De Toujours:

The Rise of the French Novel Martin Turnell, 1978 Martin Turnell's The Rise of the French Novel is a successor to his highly praised earlier books The Novel in France 1951 and The Art of French Fiction 1959 His aim now however is somewhat different as can be seen from the title It is well known that the reputations of many writers novelists especially diminish for a period following their deaths Although in the eighteenth century Marivaux Crillon and Rousseau all enjoyed a great deal of popularity during their lifetimes it is only recently that they have been subject to truly searching studies Yet they remain little read in English speaking countries Turnell emphasizes that in spite of the hostility of French critics and the fact that the novel did not reach its supremacy even in France until the nineteenth century the beginning of its great rise was indeed with such writers as these Their strong influence led such nineteenth century novelists as Stendhal and Flaubert to all kinds of changes related to style the enormous increase in the range of subject matter and the marked development of language Flaubert is the most striking example It was pointed out some time ago by Eisenstein that Madame Bovary anticipates cinematic technique One of Turnell's most interesting chapters explores the connections between the novel and film in general and Madame Bovary in particular In our own time two of the most popular French novelists in both the United States and England are Alain Fournier and Radiguet They are given enthusiastic appreciations in Turnell's thoughtful book The Year's Work in Modern , Anthologie Des Écrivains Français , 1916 A Study Guide to Stendhal's 'Scarlet and Black' (1830) Arnold Kettle, 1971 Introduction to France , 196? Stendhal's Paper Mirror James T. Day, 1987 Stendhal's narrators explicitly put forth an ethos of realism yet their self-conscious voice calls attention to artifice in fictional texts that readily depict their own elaboration This study examines the integration of various patterns of self-consciousness into works whose textual realism encourages readings that respect the novels as both textual construct and referential illusion In reflecting their own structures en abyme through various embedded narratives in thematizing the heroes and the narrators self-consciousness in exalting literariness through patterns of novelistic and theatrical imitation Stendhal's novels problematize fictional narrative discourse and language itself while affirming their referential appeal to the reader's imagination Stendhal's Parallel Lives Francesco Manzini, 2004 This book deals with the important and hitherto neglected relationship between the works of Stendhal and Plutarch's Parallel Lives Stendhal's readings of Plutarch are shown to inform his literary representations of Revolution and Empire Restoration and Orleanism as well as his theorizations of Romanticism In particular the Plutarchan concept of Parallel Lives is used to analyse one of the major themes of Stendhal's writing the self-construction of individual identity whether auto-biographical or fictional by means of the emulation as distinct from the imitation of heroic exemplars As a consequence the balance between irony and idealism often identified by critics in Stendhal's work is shown rather to be an imbalance weighted in favour of an idealism derived from Plutarchan conceptions of heroism particularly as they are represented in the Lives of Julius Caesar and Marcus Brutus Délibérations Et Mémoires de la
