Teaching STEAM Through Hands-On Crafts Christine G. Schnittka, Amanda Haynes, 2024-10-01 Help your students connect historic technologies with today's STEAM concepts through the lens of crafting This book written by a science education professor and a middle school STEM teacher provides guidance for turning classic crafts into transdisciplinary STEAM lessons for grades 3-8 Ready to use lessons outline the history science mathematics and engineering embedded within ten hands on crafts from around the world Each chapter outlines the history of a craft its social impact and the mathematics engineering and scientific concepts and skills embedded in the craft Content standards from art history English language arts technology mathematics and science are embedded within each unit Lessons are supplemented with ready to photocopy handouts guiding questions and logistical support such as shopping lists and safety procedures Activities have all been classroom tested to ensure appropriate leveling and applicability across STEAM disciplines Ideal for any STEM or STEAM classroom across upper elementary and middle schools this book helps make STEM concepts meaningful and tangible for your students Rather than just reading about science technology mathematics or engineering students will become makers and engage in STEAM directly just as original crafters have done for centuries Additional instructional materials are available at <https://steamcrafts.weebly.com>

Kingly Crafts Yung-ti Li, 2022-12-20 The site of Anyang the last capital of the Shang dynasty dated to around 1200 to 1000 BCE is one of the most important sources of knowledge about craft production in Bronze Age China Excavations and research of the settlement over the past ninety years demonstrate both the advanced level of Shang craft workers and the scale and capacity of the craft industries of the time. However, materials unearthed in Anyang by different expeditions have since been stored separately in China and Taiwan, making a thorough study of this important aspect of life in Shang China challenging. Despite efforts to integrate the data based on published material, the physical evidence rarely has been considered as a single group. Through a systematic analysis of the archaeological materials available in both China and Taiwan, Yung-ti Li provides a detailed picture of craft production in Anyang and paves the way for a new understanding of how the Shang capital functioned as a metropolis. Focusing on craft producing activities including bronze casting, bone working, shell and marble inlay working, lithic working, and pottery production, Kingly Crafts examines the material remains, the technology, and the production organization of the craft industries. Although the level of Shang craftsmanship can be seen in the finished products, Li demonstrates that it is necessary to study workshop remains and their archaeological context to reconstruct the social and political contexts of craft production. Offering a comprehensive investigation of these remains, Kingly Crafts sheds new light on the relationships between craft industries and political authority in the late Shang period.
