Material Engagements Neil Brodie, 2004 The subject matter of archaeology is the engagement of human beings now and in the past with both the natural world and the material world they have created All aspects of human activity are potentially relevant to archaeological research and conversely the ways in which others especially artists and anthropologists have investigated the world are of interest to archaeologists Archaeological artefacts and sites are also used by groups and nations to establish identity and for financial gain both through tourism and trade in antiquities Colin Renfrew has actively engaged with art with politics and with the antiquities trade and has presented his ideas to broad audiences through accessible books and television programmes as well as championing the cause of archaeology in many public roles The papers in this volume which have been written by colleagues and former students on the occasion of his retirement relate to all of these subject areas and together give some idea of the complexity of the issues raised by critical engagements with the material world both past and present

Art in Action Natural World Museum, 2007 In the environmental realm science and art are inextricably linked While science determines how we measure the health of our planet art allows us to visualize our relationship to the natural world In Art in Action seventy nine artists share their stories and work to paint a portrait of our natural world today and the potential pathways both positive and negative we may follow from here Their art expresses appreciation for all species and landscapes and explores our natural world lost mourned and reconstructed It described the fantasy of paradises new and vanished Each chapter asks us to celebrate reflect interact protect and act demonstrating the diversity of life and the legacy that the next generation will inherit No book can change the natural world But these stories and photographs can build awareness the first critical step in changing our collective paradigm from one that exploits and destroys nature to one that nurtures and values our environment
