Loving You, Thinking of You, Don't Forget to Pray Jacqueline L. Jackson, 2019-02-05 From Jacqueline Jackson wife of Jesse Jackson role model and civil rights veteran comes an inspiring gift of love to a child in his darkest hour and a lesson to everyone who has been touched by the scourge of mass incarceration Jacqueline Jackson promised her son Congressman Jesse L Jackson Jr that she would write him every day during his incarceration in prison while he served his thirty month sentence This book is an inspiring and moving selection of the letters she wrote him Together they comprise a powerful act of love nurturing and ministering to her son's heart health and mind and maintaining his essential connection with home Frank anecdotal imbued with faith and sometimes humorous they offer intimate details from the family's daily life along with news of friends and the community and glimpses of such figures as Nelson Mandela Winnie Mandela and Mayor Marion Barry They also touch eloquently on issues of social justice politics and history as when Mrs Jackson recalls growing up in Jim Crow Florida and they reflect the qualities instilled by her own mother that made her a role model for much of her life Ultimately these letters offer a blueprint for why we have to support our families not just as they elevate but when they fall This collection is Mrs Jackson's contribution to healing during a time when our prisons are full and our communities are suffering She provides the road map for ensuring that the individuals serving sentences understand that prison is where they are not who they are and for helping them sustain the courage to keep hope alive

Mind Expanding: Teaching For Thinking And Creativity In Primary Education Wegerif, Rupert, 2010-08-01 There is considerable interest in education around the world in flexible thinking and learning skills but very little consensus as to the nature of these skills and how best to promote them in schools This book puts forward a clear and practical framework for understanding thinking creativity and learning to learn as the fruits of engagement in dialogue It also outlines in detail how this framework can be applied to teaching across the curriculum at both primary and secondary level drawing on the best practices associated with the teaching thinking creativity and learning to learn movements explaining their success in terms of dialogic theory In particular the book incorporates aspects of a number of thinking skills approaches such as Lipman's Philosophy for Children approach as well as features of contemporary innovations in education such as assessment for learning and the development of creativity Each chapter opens with a vignette to set the scene and continue into a light and popularly written exposition of theory before moving on to a description of practice and concluding with practical guidelines for how to teach for thinking and creativity in schools and classrooms The first six chapters in the book have more of a focus on developing core theoretical themes and the following six chapters in the second half of the book focus more on practice led themes The relationship between theory and practice is treated as flexible and dynamic theory being developed by practice as much as practice implementing theory
