Peter F Drucker may be best known as a writer on business and management but these subjects were not his foremost intellectual concern Drucker's primary concerns were community in which the individual has status and society in which the individual has function Here he has assembled selections from his vast writings on these subjects This collection presents the full range of Drucker's thought on community society and political structure and constitutes an ideal introduction to his ideas The volume is divided into seven parts The selections in parts 1 and 2 were mostly written during World War Two and in the wake of the Great Depression Part 3 deals with the limits of governmental competence in the social and economic realm It contains some of Drucker's most influential writings concerned with the difference between big government and effective government The chapters in part 4 explore autonomous centers of power outside government and within society Part 5 contains chapters from Drucker's path breaking work on the corporation as a social organization rather than merely an economic one The rise of the so called knowledge industries forms the background for part 6 The concluding part 7 is devoted entirely to Drucker's long essay The Next Society Drucker examines the emergence of new institutions and new theories arising from the information revolution and the social changes they are helping to bring about In organizing these representative writings Drucker chose to be topical rather than chronological with each excerpt presenting a basic theme of his life's work As is characteristic of his efforts A Functioning Society appeals both the general reader as well as a cross disciplinary scholarly readership The Pension Fund Revolution, 2011-12-31 In The Pension Fund Revolution originally published nearly two decades ago under the title The Unseen Revolution Drucker reports that institutional investors especially pension funds have become the controlling owners of America's large companies the country's only capitalists He maintains that the shift began in 1952 with the establishment of the first modern pension fund by General Motors. By 1960 it had become so obvious that a group of young men decided to found a stock exchange firm catering exclusively to these new investors. Ten years later this firm, Donaldson Lufkin and Jenrette, predicted that pensions and social security would be central to American economy and society, that the retirement age would have to be extended, and that altogether American politics would increasingly be dominated by middle class issues and the values of elderly people. While readers of the original edition found these conclusions hard to accept, Drucker's work has proven to be prescient. In the new epilogue, Drucker discusses how the increasing dominance of pension funds represents one of the most startling power shifts in economic history and he examines their present day impact. The Pension Fund Revolution is now considered a classic text regarding the effects of pension fund ownership on the governance of the American corporation and on the structure of the American economy altogether. The reissuing of this book is more timely now than ever. It provides a wealth of information for sociologists, economists, and political theorists. Gospel Herald, 1915
