Do Not Take this Road to El-Karama Chris Harvie, 2011-04-08 Tired of tragic stories Chris Harvie sets out to see the positive side of the Dark Continent and to enjoy its life and laughter Do Not Take This Road to El Karama is the entertaining account of an epic road trip that takes him from his home outside the Kruger National Park to the banks of the Nile in Uganda and back again In his haphazard and somewhat eccentric travels Harvie encounters missionaries and mechanics locals and ex pats rascals and rogues Delving into his own mixed British and South African identity he tries to fathom in his trademark witty and sardonic style the post independence national character of the southern central and east African countries through which he and his companions pass Delightfully opinionated brimming with interesting facts questionable comment and dubious speculations this book is essential reading for anyone with more than a passing interest in Africa travel history and people in a good read or simply in being alive Volcanism and Evolution of the African Lithosphere Luigi Beccaluva, Gianluca Bianchini, B. Marjorie Wilson, 2011-01-01 The Globalisation of School Choice?

Martin Forsey, Scott Davies, Geoffrey Walford, 2008-05-12 Which school should I choose for my child For many parents this question is one of the most important of their lives School choice is a slogan being voiced around the globe conjuring images of a marketplace with an abundance of educational options Those promoting educational choice also promise equality social advantage autonomy and self expression to families But what does this globalisation of school choice actually look like on the ground This collection brings together educationalists anthropologists and sociologists who use a rich array of empirical data to understand the complex realities of school choice across a range of political and social settings in Argentina Australia Canada China England India Israel Japan Singapore Tanzania and the United States Together they show that while the language of school choice has spread globally it has done so unevenly across and within nations and is always interpreted through local social and historical contexts Neo liberal policy initiatives are re shaping education systems in many nations but in complex and varied ways This collection shows that rather than eliminating equity concerns they re embed them within new frameworks of choice and accountability This is an important book for those interested in comparative education as well as the sociology and politics of schooling
