Tax Structure and Budgetary Trends Kishor Chandra Samal,1992 With reference to India Foreign Economic Trends and Their Implications for the United States ,1974 Global Trends of Modernization in Budgeting and Finance Ushakov, Denis,2018-11-30 Traditional financial markets are the most important lever of social and economic impact that can effectively regulate markets industries national economies and international economic interactions and form global and deeply integrated economic systems Due to the global spread of financial instability and waves of financial crises the problems of researching effective financial instruments to ensure national competitiveness becomes highly significant Global Trends of Modernization in Budgeting and Finance is a pivotal reference source that provides vital research on the impacts of financial globalization in the context of economic digitalization and national financial markets While highlighting topics such as entrepreneurship international business and socio economic development this publication explores modern conditions of rapid technological progress and financial market integration as well as the methods of increasing regional intergovernmental organization efficiency This book is ideally designed for policymakers financial analysts researchers academicians graduate level students business professionals entrepreneurs scholars and managers seeking current research on new challenges and developments in national financial markets The Future of National Urban Policy Marshall Kaplan, Franklin J. James,1990 The Future of National Urban Policy brings together scholars policymakers and journalists to explore the condition of America s cities The authors focus on policies of the previous five presidential administrations to examine the history of urban policy and offer suggestions for its future Individual chapters address a variety of topics including housing employment education the infrastructure of cities and public policy The Public Budget Balance, Fiscal Indicators and Cyclical Sensitivity in the Nordic Countries Henrik Braconier,Steinar Holden,1999 The Improving Budget Outlook United States. Congress. Joint Economic Committee. Subcommittee on Trade, Productivity, and Economic Growth,1986 Understanding the tax reform debate background, criteria, & questions ,2005 The 2012 Long-term Budget Outlook ,2012 In the past few years the federal government has been recording the largest budget deficits since 1945 both in dollar terms and as a share of the economy Consequently the amount of federal debt held by the public has surged At the end of 2008 that debt equaled 40 percent of the nation s annual economic output gross domestic product or GDP a little above the 40 year average of 38 percent Since then the figure has shot upward By the end of this year the Congressional Budget Office CBO projects federal debt will exceed 70 percent of GDP the highest percentage since shortly after World War II The sharp rise in debt stems partly from lower tax revenues and higher federal spending caused by the severe economic downturn and from policies enacted during the past few years However the growing debt also reflects an imbalance between spending and revenues that predated the recession Whether that debt will continue to grow in coming decades will be affected not only by long term demographic and economic trends but also by policymakers decisions about taxes and spending The aging of the baby boom generation portends a significant and sustained increase in the share of the population receiving benefits from Social Security and Medicare as well as long term care services financed by Medicaid Moreover per capita spending for health care is likely to continue rising faster than spending per person on other goods and services for many years although the magnitude of that gap is uncertain Without significant changes in government policy those factors will boost federal outlays relative to GDP well above their average of the past several decades a conclusion that holds under any plausible assumptions about future trends in demographics economic conditions and health care costs According to CBO's projections if current laws remained in place spending on the major federal health care programs alone would grow from more than 5 percent of GDP today to almost 10 percent in 2037 and would continue to increase thereafter 1 Spending on Social Security is projected to rise much less sharply from 5 percent of GDP today to more than 6 percent in 2030 and subsequent decades Altogether the aging of the population and the rising cost of health care would cause spending on the major health care programs and Social Security to grow from more than 10 percent of GDP today to almost 16 percent of GDP 25 years from now That combined increase of more than 5 percentage points for such spending as a share of the economy is the federal government's programs and activities equivalent to about 850 billion today By comparison spending on all of excluding net outlays for interest has averaged about 18.5 percent of GDP over the past 40 years If lawmakers continued certain policies that have been in place for a number of years or modified some provisions of current law that might be difficult to sustain for a long period the increase in spending on health care programs and Social Security would be even larger Absent substantial increases in federal revenues such growth in outlays would result in greater debt burdens than the United States has ever experienced The Budget of the United States Government United States, United States. Office of Management and Budget, 1983

Congressional Budget Office, 1977 Baseline Budget Projections for Fiscal Years 1985-1989, 1984 The Japanese Tax Reform International Monetary Fund, 1990-09-01 Efficiency equity fairness and simplicity are three key words in characterizing the principles of proposed tax reforms in many countries The internationalization of the financial market through capital mobility among the industrial countries is a recent phenomenon and it is possible that the effect of domestic tax reform is dictated by international capital flows The purpose of this paper is to examine whether the tax reform proposed recently in Japan satisfies the above principles in particular efficiency and equity and to investigate the effects not only on the real economy in Japan but also on capital outflows from Japan to abroad Also the aging problem is examined briefly

The Economic and Budget Outlook ,1994 Economic Management and Transition Towards a Market Economy Anthony T.H. Chin,1996 Much attention has been focused in recent years on the transformation of the economies of Eastern and Central Europe and the former Soviet Union However a growing demand for policy advice technical assistance and expertise is also coming from Asian reforming countries such as China Mongolia Vietnam Laos and Cambodia In addition business communities abroad are increasingly interested in exploring investment and marketing opportunities in these reforming countries Such developments are too important to overlook or ignore The transformation of socialist economies towards market based systems entails an unusually wide range of problems Studies of related topics are complicated by the speed of the changes and the lack of clear historical precedents Although the structural features of Asian reforming economies are in important ways different from those of the Eastern European economies all socialist economies share similar fundamental conditions on the eve of economic reform which raise a similar set of reform issues This volume brings together a rich collection of expertise and information in an attempt to shed some light on the transitional process in Asia The contributions are by no means exhaustive However they provide the reader and analyst with an excellent starting point to the problems and prospects which are specific to Asian transforming economies
