The Evolution of Grammar Joan Bybee,Revere Perkins,William Pagliuca,1994-11-15 Joan Bybee and her colleagues present a new theory of the evolution of grammar that links structure and meaning in a way that directly challenges most contemporary versions of generative grammar This study focuses on the use and meaning of grammatical markers of tense aspect and modality and identifies a universal set of grammatical categories The authors demonstrate that the semantic content of these categories evolves gradually and that this process of evolution is strikingly similar across unrelated languages Through a survey of seventy six languages in twenty five different phyla the authors show that the same paths of change occur universally and that movement along these paths is in one direction only This analysis reveals that lexical substance evolves into grammatical substance through various mechanisms of change such as metaphorical extension and the conventionalization of implicature Grammaticization is always accompanied by an increase in frequency of the grammatical marker providing clear evidence that language use is a major factor in the evolution of synchronic language states The Evolution of Grammar has important implications for the development of language and for the study of cognitive processes in general

Learning and Knowledge for the Network Society David

V. Gibson, Manuel V. Heitor, Alejandro Ibarra Yunez, 2005 This title discusses technology policy and management in a context much influenced by a dynamic of change and a necessary balance between the creation and diffusion of knowledge It is largely grounded on empirical experiences of different regional and national contexts Co-Creation in Higher Education

Tatiana Chemi, Lone Krogh, 2017-09-12 The main purpose of this book is to disseminate new research on co creative approaches to teaching and learning in Higher Education HE The cases presented draw from a Danish cultural and educational context and have a special focus on collaborative co creative and distributed perspectives With this collected volume we wish to show the diversity of approaches to the concept of co creation on the one hand and on the other we intend to give a specific direction to these studies which is humanistic sociological creative and pedagogical The contexts we look at are problem based and student led learning arts based approaches to higher educational research and teaching collaborative practices We believe that these perspectives are still in need of further investigation through theories and practices We understand co creation as the process of creative original and valuable generation of shared meaning and development This collected volume offers novel empirical documentation and original theoretical reflections on the application of co creative processes in higher education This can be directly relevant for educators and the ways in which they design education but also for students and the ways in which they cope with and manage an ever changing academic labour market Enhancing Learning Through Technology
