Goodman,2008-04-15 Speaking in tongues or glossolalia is practiced in many different religions around the world Dismissed as meaningless gibberish by some observers it has been the subject of only a few fragmentary studies The work of Felicitas D Goodman represents the first cross cultural analysis of this enigmatic behavior and she brings to her research an extensive background in linguistics and anthropology Dr Goodman s fieldwork included living with apostolic congregations in Mexico City in the Yucatan with Maya Indians and visits with a congregation in Hammond Indiana Her observations were preserved on a remarkable collection of sound recordings and films For this book she presents a selection of conversion stories that highlights the personality structure and experiences of the speakers A detailed analysis of the phonological and suprasegmental features of the recorded utterances show a surprising cross cultural agreement This led Goodman to believe that glossolalists speak the way they do because their speech behavior is modified in a particular mental state often termed trance into which they place themselves In this light the glossolalia utterance is seen as an artifact of a hyperaroused mental state or in Chomskyan terms as the surface structure of a nonlinguistic deep structure that of the altered state of consciousness Goodman describes the hyperaroused mental state as a neurophysiological phenomenon as well as the associated patterns of movement and the problems of waking from it Goodman s diachronic approach yielded equally surprising data about the changes and the waning of the behavior over time But as she observes we have barely touched the edge of a very large area of inquiry Her fascinating study opens a number of new avenues of research for anthropologists such as the study of physiological states accompanying linguistic and ritual behavior The Power of Tongues ,2005
