Speaking Out University of Wisconsin System. Women's Studies Consortium. Women's Studies Conference, 1999

Women Take Care Katie Hogan, 2018-08-06 Self sacrificing mothers and forgiving wives caretaking lesbians and vigilant maternal surrogates these good women are all familiar figures in the visual and print culture relating to AIDS In a probing critique of that culture Katie Hogan demonstrates ways in which literary and popular works use the classic image of the nurturing female to render queer AIDS more acceptable while consigning women to conventional roles and reinforcing the idea that everyone with this disease is somehow suspect In times of crisis the figure of the idealized woman who is modest and selfless has repeatedly surfaced in Western culture as a balm and a source of comfort and as a means of mediating controversial issues Drawing on examples from journalism medical discourse fiction drama film television and documentaries Hogan describes how texts on AIDS reproduce this historically entrenched paradigm of sacrifice and care a paradigm that reinforces biases about race and sexuality Hogan believes that the growing nostalgia for women's traditional roles has deflected attention away from women's own health needs Throughout her book she depicts caretaking as a fundamental human obligation but one that currently falls primarily to those members of society with the least power Only by rejecting the stereotype of the good woman she says can Americans begin to view caretaking as the responsibility of the entire society

Transforming Or Reforming Capitalism John Loxley, 2007 Growing worldwide interest in community economic development has led to a blossoming of how to manuals as well as analyses of co-operatives development corporations gender financing etc Yet in all this discussion very little is said about the basic objective of CED Is it designed to fill holes left by capitalism or is it intended to replace it There is equally little on a theory of CED This book draws on several disciplines particularly economics sociology and political studies to assess the state of CED theory and to identify implicit issues for building that theory It emphasizes the necessity to draw theoretical insights from each discipline in the process howing the efficacy of interdisciplinary approaches It concludes with a discussion of both future theoretical directions and of what existing theory has to say about achieving a transformative CED pub website Creating Gender Cathy Marie Johnson, Georgia Duerst-Lahti, Noelle H. Norton, 2007 Seldom do we notice let alone explicitly acknowledge that public policies set distinct parameters for gender But as Creating Gender compellingly demonstrates in reality governments do use policy to legitimize and support some gender based behaviors while undermining others Looking in depth at the case of welfare reform but considering a wide range of policy arenas the authors examine how government policymaking in essence defines the proper nature of males and females At the heart of their analysis is an effort to resolve questions about how policies determine what women and men must do to be granted standing as good citizens and what benefits they can subsequently accrue The result is a clear yet sophisticated exploration of the troublesome sometimes insidious ways in which gender ideology works in tandem with conventional political ideologies in the United States today Cathy Marie Johnson is professor of political science and W Ford Schumann Faculty Fellow in Democratic Studies at Williams College Her publications include The Dynamics of Conflict Between Bureaucrats and Legislators Georgia Duerst Lahti is professor of political science at Beloit College She is author of Gender Power Leadership and Government Noelle H Norton is professor of political science at the University of San Diego She has written extensively on women in US politics Contents Introduction Making Policy Making Gender On Creating Gender Toward a Suitably Complex Framework for Analysis Unfolding Gender Paradigms A History of Sexual Politics in Welfare Policy Making Masculine Mothers Vanquishing Feminality Policy Casts Fathers Deadbeats and Scofflaws Good Guys and Promise Keepers Gender Ideology Reflected in Practice The Case of Wisconsin s Legislature Measuring Gender s Influence in Congressional Policymaking Recognizing the Sexual Politics of Public Policy Handbook of Public Policy Evaluation Stuart S. A Subject Index to Current Literature Australian

Public Affairs Information Service, Proactive Child Protection and Social Work Liz Davies, Nora Duckett, 2016-04-07
Protecting children from abuse and neglect is a serious and complex area of social work practice and understanding the critical skills of communicating with and listening to children's voices and those of their advocates and survivors is essential. In this new edition of a highly regarded book the authors offer a strengthened children's rights perspective and explore four main categories of child abuse: emotional abuse, sexual abuse, neglect and physical abuse. The book also considers legal safeguards and protective processes to increase the creativity and confidence of those undertaking such work. Locating knowledge and skills within a series of case examples from real life practice and serious case reviews, this book is an indispensable resource for students, professionals and others concerned with protecting children. This second edition has been comprehensively revised and updated to include current research evidence and a focus on the neglected protection needs of sexually exploited young people, children in custody, disabled children, young carers and unaccompanied child migrants.

Remapping Gender in the New Global Order Marjorie Griffin-Cohen, Janine Brodie, 2007-06-11. This book analyses changes in gender relations as a result of globalization in countries on the semi periphery of power. Semi periphery refers to those nations which are not drivers of change globally but have enough economic and political security to have some power in determining their own responses to global forces. Individual countries obviously face challenges that are to some extent unique, although the prescriptions for economic and social restructuring are based on a common competitive logic. Remapping Gender in the New Global Order draws on examples from four countries on the semi periphery of power but still located in the top category of the UNDP's Human Development Index. At one end is Norway, one of the world's richest and most developed welfare states, and at the other is Mexico, a country that is considerably poorer and more susceptible to the power of the United States and international agencies. Australia and Canada, the other two semi peripheral countries examined, are in the middle. Also included are comparisons with the epicentre of the core base of power, the United States. The individual chapters focus on the effect on specific groups of people, including males and indigenous groups, the mechanisms people use to both cope with dramatic social changes and the strategies and alliances that are used to affect the course of changes. It covers topics that range from implications of labour migration on care regimes to globalism's effect on masculinity and the male breadwinner model.
