high poverty schools with fewer resources less experienced teachers and fewer social networks that cross lines of racial class and ethnic difference Confronting Suburban School Resegregation in California investigates the struggles in a central California school district where a predominantly white residential community recently undertook a decade long campaign to secede from an increasingly Latino attended school district Drawing on years of ethnographic research Clayton A Hurd explores the core issues at stake in resegregation campaigns as well as the resistance against them mobilized by the working class Latino community From the emotionally charged narratives of local students parents teachers school administrators and community activists emerges a compelling portrait of competing visions for equitable and quality education shared control and social and racial justice
