Good God but You Smart! Nichole E. Stanford, 2016-10-14 Taking Cajuns as a case study Good God but You Smart explores the subtle ways language bias is used in classrooms within families and in pop culture references to enforce systemic economic inequality It is the first book in composition studies to examine comprehensively and from an insider's perspective the cultural and linguistic assimilation of Cajuns in Louisiana The study investigates the complicated motivations and cultural concessions of upwardly mobile Cajuns who choose to self censor to speak Standardized English over the Cajun

English that carries their cultural identity Drawing on surveys of English teachers in four Louisiana colleges previously unpublished archival data and Pierre Bourdieu's theory of the legitimate language author Nichole Stanford explores how socioeconomic and political pressures rooted in language prejudice make code switching or self censoring in public seem a responsible decision Yet teaching students to skirt others prejudice toward certain dialects only puts off actually dealing with the prejudice Focusing on what goes on outside classrooms Stanford critiques code switching and cautions users of code meshing that pedagogical responses within the educational system are limited by the reproductive function of schools Each theory section includes parallel memoir sections in the Cajun tradition of storytelling to open an experiential window to the study without technical language Through its explication of language legitimacy and its grounding in lived experience Good God but You Smart is an essential addition to the pedagogical canon of language minority studies like those of Villanueva Gilyard Smitherman and Rose

Scientific Models for Religious Knowledge Andrew Ralls Woodward,2018-08-14 Most comparisons of science and religion are really comparisons of science and Christianity or science and Islam and so forth In Scientific Models for Religious Knowledge the author aims to get outside typical polarized debates between traditional a priori theism and radical scientific naturalism Instead a new science and religion compatibility system between a scientific study of religion and a religious epistemology is our new elusive problem Moreover we shall look at a comparison and contrast of modern science with the simple deference of the human mind to the actions of culturally postulated superhuman agents This book pays critical attention to the contributions of scholars in the philosophy of religion the philosophy of science and the scientific study of religion Scientific Models for Religious Knowledge is useful for readers looking to expand their learning in the philosophies of science and religion as these subjects are taught and analyzed in modern research universities

Globalisation and Services-driven Economic Growth Niels Beerepoot,Bart Lambregts,Jana Kleibert,2016-07-28 Following drastic shifts in the spatial organization of goods production increasingly fierce competition now forces firms also to look critically at how to organize the production of services While digitization and advances in information and communication technologies have enabled firms to unbundle service production processes the increased global availability of skilled labour allows for the relocation of ever more of these processes around the world As a result a new geography of services production takes shape a geography that is defined by new interregional and international divisions of labour and held together by increasingly complex global services production networks This book examines how the reorganisation of services production alters relations between and generates different sets of challenges and opportunities for economic development in the Global North and the Global South Drawing from 11 case studies probing various aspects of services production in different parts of the world the book brings out the remarkable heterogeneity and transformative capacities of services It successively shows how global trade in services creates new interdependencies between services producing and services consuming regions reveals how services help to mitigate the impact of and contribute to recovery from economic crises in the Global North and demonstrates how services offshoring fosters economic development and service sector driven modernisation processes in the Global South The book s openness to the heterogeneous and dynamic nature of services production enlarges our understanding of which particular services in which spatiotemporal context have the capacity to generate good jobs contribute to productivity and drive economic growth The book stands out from other books in the field in that it combines perspectives on services driven transformations from both the Global North and the Global South and looks into the role of various services segments Based on pioneering empirical research and original data it offers a timely contribution to this growing debate The book provides valuable insights for students scholars and professionals interested in services services offshoring services driven growth and socioeconomic transformations in the Global North and South
