Staff Development Organization Development Ascd 1981 Yearbook:

Staff Development/organization Development Betty Dillon-Peterson, ASCD 1981 Yearbook Committee, Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development. Yearbook Committee, 1981 Six topics relative to staff development are discussed The first chapter discusses staff and organization development in a 1981 perspective Both staff and organization development are necessary for planned change and school improvement Both are important processes in personal and professional growth The second chapter views staff development from the perspective of change in the individual Several frameworks are provided which can be used to understand individual differences and to design staff development programs in such a manner as to capitalize on human variety The third chapter deals with organizational development as a tool for educational change The fourth chapter provides models for designing effective staff development programs The fifth chapter describes methods for evaluating staff development The evaluation component needs to provide information about the adequacy of the processes the condition of the overall system and the results of specific training The sixth chapter describes a staff development scenario for the future in which scenes from a future teacher's life are included JN AETS Yearbook, 1982 EBOOK: Professional Development for Educational Management Lesley Kydd, Megan Crawford, Colin Riches, 1997-01-16 This book begins from the perspective that organizational effectiveness will be improved if the individuals within the organization are engaged in developing professionally It takes the individual as the key resource of any institution and the notion of professional development as the key to the learning of educational managers This book offers both theoretical and practical perspectives on the key components of professional development linking reflection and knowledge with skills and capabilities It then takes educational managers on to consider the systems and tasks which they have to undertake in managing the professional development of others from selecting the right person for the job to setting up appropriate appraisal systems This book provides educational managers and those interested in the field with an introduction to the processes and skills which they will need in managing educational establishments both now and in the future This volume forms part of the Leadership and Management in Education series This four book series provides a carefully chosen selection of high quality readings on key contemporary themes in educational management professional development reflection on practice leadership team working effectiveness and improvement quality strategy and resources The series will be an important resource for classroom teachers and lecturers as well as those holding designated management posts in schools and colleges and will provide a valuable basis for professional development programmes Staff Development for School Improvement Marvin Wideen, Ian Andrews, 1987 Subject Catalog, 1981 Library of Congress, 1981 A Model Framework for Effective Staff Development Morgan Dale Lambert, 1984 Supervision for Today's Schools George E. Pawlas, Peter F. Oliva, 2007-06-29 Specifically designed for the introductory course this text provides an overview of the field of instructional supervision Acquaints students with not only the author's views on supervision but with those of other specialists in the field placing heavy emphasis on practice and the supervisor's responsibilities as an instructional leader. Continues to stress that the relationship between the supervisor and teacher is built on trust and that the overall goal is to improve student achievement through better instruction.

The Journal of Education for Teaching at 40 Peter Gilroy, 2018-10-19 In 2015 the Journal of Education for Teaching celebrated 40 years of original contributions on the subject of international teacher education with the publication of an anniversary virtual special issue. Its unique contribution to debates about the preparation and lifelong learning of teachers in a variety of fields including medical education and language education have been expressed in a variety of formats and international contexts. These include high quality academic papers using innovative qualitative and quantitative methodologies, symposia in the form of Platonic dialogues and even critical positions expressed in verse. This virtual special issue was freely available online throughout 2015 but the strong demand for the papers has prompted their re-publication in this volume with the addition of several more articles. Taken together this collection will allow the reader to experience the variety of the dozen or so international contexts represented in the journal and its academic quality. Included in the volume is the original Editorial from the first issue of the journal. The fact that the points made in this forty year old piece still ring true suggests that the threats to high quality teacher education remain much the same as they did four decades or more ago. The Journal of Education for Teaching continues to provide an indispensable platform for colleagues to make their voices heard in what appears to be an increasingly shrill evidence-free environment. Long may it do so.

Educational Administration and Policy James W. Guthrie, Rodney J. Reed, 1986

Design and Evaluation of a Course in Staff Development for School Improvement Alice T. Rodli, 1986

School Change Models and Processes Marshall Sashkin, John Egermeier, 1993 This report examines a 30 year history of educational change to identify differing perspectives, strategies and useful principles. The three most influential perspectives in educational change are the rational/scientific perspective which proposes that change is created through the dissemination of innovative techniques, the political perspective which generates change through legislation and other directives outside the school district, and the cultural perspective which seeks improvement through value changes in organizations. There are four strategies for implementing change: fix the parts, fix the people, fix the schools, and fix the system. Systemic education reform offers new hope because it brings together the technical knowledge needed for improvement with a locally sensitive education strategy. Through the Goals 2000 Initiative the U.S. Department of Education supports reform efforts within the framework of the six National Education Goals. The Department and the Office of Educational Research and Improvement support standards-based assessment techniques. They also assist states in developing curriculum frameworks and help disseminate sound research and practice-based knowledge. A reference bibliography, illustrative programs, and additional sources are included. JPT
