Housing: Who Decides? P. King, M. Oxley, 2000-07-25 Housing Who Decides consists of a debate between a political theorist and an economist on decision making in housing Each author develops a normative argument linking theoretical and policy analyses to establish the abilities of the state and individuals to determine housing outcomes A Conservative Consensus? Peter King,2015-12-17 New Labour would like to portray 1997 as a new beginning for public policy but Peter King argues that we now have in housing and in other areas of public policy a consensus based on Thatcherite reforms He explores the particularly conservative understanding of housing that transformed public attitudes in the 1980s and 1990s and the impact it still has on policy This book is written with non housing specialists in mind and will be of interest to students of housing urban studies public policy and politics at both undergraduate and higher levels Choice and Diversity: an End to Monopoly in Social Housing John Swinney,2000-03-07 Housing, Social Policy and Difference Malcolm Harrison,Cathy Davis,2001-04-18 How does the welfare state and its institutions respond to impairment ethnicity and gender This book provides an overview of issues set in the context of housing From ethnic minority housing needs to the housing implications of domestic violence it shows how difference is regulated in housing Economics, Planning and Housing Michael Oxley,2004-05-04 This broad ranging new text applies economics analysis to the aims instruments and outcomes of land use planning and housing policies The core focus is on providing students with a substantive and sophisticated understanding of the relation of the state and market and such key current issues as sustainable development urban renaissance affordable housing and the relationships between planning housebuilding and house prices Drawing examples from Britain the rest of Europe and the USA it emphasizes the role of economics in promoting a theoretically informed and evidence based approach to policy formation and implementation Future of Social Housing Michael Oxley,2000-06 Greenfields, Brownfields and Housing Development David Adams,Craig Watkins,2008-04-15 The location of new housing development has become one of the most intractable controversies of modern times This book provides a powerful critique of the growing tendency to reduce the debate on the development of new housing to a mere choice between greenfield and brownfield locations It calls for full account to be taken of such factors as the structure and organisation of the housebuilding industry supply and demand pressures in the housing market the contested nature of sustainability and the political character of the planning process if a truly effective housing land policy is to be devised Drawing on theories from economics and political science this book will provide an important reference point on the institutional context within which residential development takes place and on the concerns of planning authorities environmentalists housebuilders and their customers in relation to the apparent choice between greenfield and brownfield development Housing Markets and Planning Policy Colin Jones,Craig Watkins,2009-10-08 Housing systems in many countries are now more market oriented than ever before This is particularly true of the UK where there is heightened interest in the ability of the market to deliver new housing as well as considerable debate among housing academics and policy makers over the extent to which policy instruments can be used to steer market processes This increased market orientation means a greater understanding of market economics is needed The challenges of providing affordable housing while simultaneously addressing the problems of low demand housing in some areas together with the revitalisation of neighbourhoods in need of renewal also underline the need for a better understanding of the structure and operation of housing markets at local and neighbourhood level This timely contribution to the field addresses the main housing and planning policy challenges in the UK today It does so by examining the structure and operation of the urban housing system and then exploring both conceptual and empirical analyses of the workings of the market The authors then consider the lessons for policy makers discussing the limitations of the policy framework and considering the strategies for integrating market information into the analysis undertaken in practice Housing Markets Planning Policy is an invaluable advanced text for students of land economy land management urban planning housing and urban studies The authors provide a uniquely detailed analysis of an important policy area that builds on a strong theoretical basis drawn from housing economics With the challenges posed by the instability of the housing market it will be of particular interest to academic researchers policy makers and housing and planning practitioners

Understanding Housing Finance Professor of Social History Peter King, 2005-07 This book discusses housing finance in political terms thus providing a thorough analysis of the mechanisms and principles which are at the heart of current policies and an understanding of the processes within housing finance

Introduction to Rural Planning

Nick Gallent, Meri Juntti, Sue Kidd, Dave Shaw, 2008-01-14 Providing an overview of rural spatial planning for students on planning geography and related programmes this book charts the major patterns and processes of rural change affecting the British countryside its landscape its communities and its economies in the twentieth century The authors examine the role of planning in shaping rural spaces not only the statutory comprehensive planning that emerged in the post war period but also planning and rural programme delivery undertaken by central regional and local policy agencies The book is designed to accompany a typical teaching programme in rural planning and considers the nature of rural areas and the emergence of statutory planning in England the agents of rural policy delivery and the potential for current planning practice to become a policy hub at the local level co ordinating the actions and programmes of different agents economic change in the countryside and the influence planning has in shaping rural economies social change the nature of rural communities and recent debates on housing and rural service provision environmental change the changing fortunes of farming landscape protection and the idea of a multi functional landscape made by forces that can be shaped by the planning process key areas of current concern in spatial rural planning including debates surrounding city regions the rural the challenge of managing rural change in the twenty first century through new planning and governance processes A comprehensive coverage of the forces processes and outcomes of rural change whilst keeping planning s influence and role in clear view at all times

From recession to renewal

Richardson, Joanna, 2010-11-10 The banking collapse and ensuing global financial crisis has been the subject of much analysis and speculation One growing certainty is that there will be an impact on the delivery of public services and on local government and governance This topical book examines and debates the challenges posed on a local European and global level by the imperative to balance a fiscal need for smaller public expenditure with a social need for strong governance and protection of the most vulnerable in UK society Leading academics in the field of local governance contribute to a diverse set of analyses on the impact of the financial crisis

The Knowledge Business Rob Imrie, 2016-03-03 This book provides a critique of the knowledge business and describes and evaluates its different manifestations in and impacts on the university sector Its focus is the social sciences and in particular housing and urban studies Drawing on a wide range of experiences both in the UK and elsewhere it illustrates the changing management of the academy and the development by university managers of instruments or techniques of control to ensure that academics are disciplined in ways that are commensurate with achieving commercial goals The individual chapters highlight the different ways in which the academy is being put to work for commercial gain and they evaluate how far the public service ethos of the universities is coming apart in a context in which what is to be serviced is increasingly a private clientele defined by their ability to pay The Knowledge Business examines the contradictions and tensions associated with these processes highlighting the implications for the academic labour process and the future of the academy

Masters of the Universe Daniel Stedman Jones, 2014-07-21 How radical free market ideas achieved mainstream dominance in postwar America and Britain Based on archival research and interviews with leading participants in the movement Masters of the Universe traces the ascendancy of neoliberalism from the academy of interwar Europe to supremacy under Reagan and Thatcher and in the decades since Daniel Stedman Jones argues that there was nothing inevitable about the victory of free market politics Far from being the story of the simple triumph of right wing ideas the neoliberal breakthrough was contingent on the economic crises of the 1970s and the acceptance of the need for new policies by the political left This edition includes a new foreword in which the author addresses the relationship between intellectual history and the history of politics and policy Fascinating important and timely this is a book for anyone who wants to understand the history behind the Anglo American love affair with the free market as well as the origins of the current economic crisis

Decent Homes for All Nick Gallent, Mark Tewdwr-Jones, 2006-12-05 Are you concerned about the state of current housing provision Worried about further decline in the years ahead Decent Homes for All addresses fundamental questions about the current housing crisis examining its history and evolution The first text on the housing planning interface it explores the relationship between planning and housing supply focusing on housing supply the quality and form of residential development affordability and sustainability and the changing nature of planning itself The questions covered include Why have we moved away from state housing provision How might the current crisis in housing affordability be addressed through planning policy Why has recent debate broadened to encompass the idea of sustainable communities How will we deliver quality affordable housing in the future What role should the planning system play in delivering decent homes in the years ahead This comprehensive narrative provides students planners and researchers with a valuable account of the evolving relationship between planning and housing to aid contextual understanding and suggest how current issues might evolve in the future Two Steps Forward David S. Cowan, Marsh, Alex, 2001-07-18 This book makes a distinctive contribution to the debate on housing policy Bringing together leading scholars from the fields of housing law and housing policy it engages with the central concerns of policy and demonstrates that the parallel debates of housing studies and socio legal studies can be strengthened by a fuller exchange of ideas Coming Up from the Streets Tessa

Swithinbank, 2014-10-14 The success story of The Big Issue is both inspirational and paradoxical rather than a charity it is a flourishing commercial enterprise but one that genuinely benefits those involved The magazine is sold by homeless and vulnerable people and in return they achieve financial independence and status and self reliance The story of the paper s development has a practical angle it should offer help and insights to NGOs and governments involved with the homeless or to those businesses wishing to set up enterprises for the common good Financial Literacy Education Asta

Zokaityte, 2017-06-26 This book explores the issue of consumer financial education responding to increased interest in and calls to improve peoples financial literacy skills and abilities to understand and manage their money New conceptual frameworks introduced in the book offer academic audiences an innovative way of thinking about the project on financial literacy education Using the concepts of edu regulation and financial knowledge democratisation to analyse the financial education project in the UK the book exposes serious and often ignored limitations to using information and education as tools for consumer protection It challenges the mainstream representation of financial literacy education as a viable solution to consumer financial exclusion and poverty Instead it argues that the project on financial literacy education fails to acknowledge important dependences between consumer financial behaviour and the socio economic political and cultural context within which consumers live Finally it reveals how these international and national calls for ever greater financial education oversimplify and underestimate the complexity of consumer financial decision making in our modern times
