St Johns Chapel And The New Town Chichester:

St John's Chapel and the New Town, Chichester Alan H. J. Green, 2005 St John's Chapel in Chichester is a rare survivor a Georgian proprietary chapel which has largely escaped the attentions of modernizers By the noted architect James Elmes it is listed Grade I and no ordinary place of worship it was built and run as a commercial venture Although firmly part of the Church of England it had no parish to fund it and its trustees had to pay dividends to the shareholders as well as the minister's salary Investors included John Marsh that most prolific Georgian composer who was also chapel warden until his death Keeping the business afloat up to its closure in 1973 proved to be a constant struggle as this very entertaining new narrative account reveals The Black Friars monastery had occupied an important site in the south east of the city which became the grounds of a large mansion house In the early 19th century it came into the possession of Major General John Gustavus Crosbie who also owned much land to the south of Chichester and was a promoter of the Chichester Canal In 1808 he put up the entire Black Friars site for sale by auction intending to create a New Town of grand houses for the professional classes To this end he put restrictive covenants in the deeds forbidding unpleasant trades The New Town provided the ideal site for St John's and many invested in both projects Now Alan Green has provided the first account of the history of this part of Chichester His important new book is detailed comprehensive and impeccably researched He tells the entire story of the New Town and of St John's including architecture construction intrigues personalities and the Trustee's perpetual battle to keep the chapel open He also explores and explains not only the people who came to live there but also the various businesses including the Corn Exchange which despite Crosbie's covenants managed to become established in Newtown

Chichester in the 1960s Alan H.J. Green, 2015-02-02 Chichester is the archetypal Georgian town with streets of elegant buildings gathered closely around the ancient cathedral It usually appears to today's first time visitor that the city has been largely untouched by the hand of time particularly the destructive hand that guided the 1960s However this is not the case in the 1960s Chichester faced the same challenges as all historic towns and much was lost but the brakes were applied in good time and it became one of the first conservation areas in the country This book the first of its kind looks at how Chichester fared in that turbulent decade how it gained its status as a city of culture with a new theatre and museum and how it expanded to meet the demands of its growing populace Historical research blends with personal anecdote to produce a heartfelt portrait of the decade Cassell's Gazetteer of Great Britain and Ireland, 1900 The Religious Census of Sussex 1851 John Ashley Vickers, 1987 The British Magazine and Monthly Register of Religious and Ecclesiastical Information, Parochial History, and Documents Respecting the State of the Poor, Progress of Education, &c, 1833 Lists of chapels belonging to the Church of England ... of places of public worship, registered for solemnization of marriages, also of all superintendent registrars, and deputy superintendent registrars; registrars of marriages, and of registrars of births and deaths, and deputy registrars Registrar-general, 1842 Journals of the House of Lords Great Britain
