C. Ginn, 2017-04-21 2018 Choice Outstanding Academic Title The Late Victorian cultural mission to London s slums was a peculiar effort towards social reform that today is largely forgotten or misunderstood The philanthropy of middle and upper class social workers saw hundreds of art exhibitions concerts of fine music evening lectures clubs and socials debates and excursions mounted for the benefit of impoverished and working class Londoners Ginn s vivid and provocative book captures many of these in detail for the first time In refreshing our understanding of this obscure but eloquent activism Ginn approaches cultural philanthropy not simply as a project of class self interest nor as fanciful missionary aestheticism Rather he shows how liberal aspirations towards adult education and civic community can be traced in a number of centres of moralising voluntary effort Concentrating on Toynbee Hall in Whitechapel the People s Palace in Mile End Red Cross Hall in Southwark and the Bermondsey Settlement the discussion identifies the common impulses animating practical reformers across these settings Drawing on new primary research to clarify reformers underlying intentions and strategies Ginn shows how these were shaped by a distinctive diagnosis of urban deprivation and anomie In rebutting the common view that cultural philanthropy was a crudely paternalistic attempt to impose rational recreation on the poor this volume explores its sources in a liberal minded social idealism common to both religious and secular conceptions of social welfare in this period Culture Philanthropy and the Poor in Late Victorian London

Sim, Stephen Hay, Jill Ryan, 2012-06-22 Leaving school whether to move on to training work or education is a fundamental rite of passage the world over This volume draws on a wealth of international sources and studies in its analysis of the transitions young students make as they move on from their secondary schooling It identifies how these transitions are planned for by policymakers enacted by school staff and engaged with by students themselves With data from a range of nations with advanced industrial economies the book delineates how the policies relating to these transitions need to be conceived and implemented how the transitions themselves are negotiated by young people and how they might be shaped to meet the varied needs of the students they are designed to help The authors argue that the relationship often complex between what schools provide in the way of preparation and the ways in which students take up what is on offer is the crucial nexus for understanding the experience of transitions by young people and for enhancing that experience With a host of case studies of transition policies themselves as well as evaluative data on how they were received by the school leavers whom they were designed for this valuable addition to the educational literature deserves to be read by all those with roles in preparing the

The Cumulative Book Index, 1922 Social Control in Europe Herman Roodenburg, 2004 This two volume collection of essays provides a comprehensive examination of the idea of social control in the history of Europe The uniqueness of these volumes lies in two main areas First the contributors compare methods of social control on many levels from police to shaming church to guilds Second they look at these formal and informal institutions as two way processes Unlike many studies of social control in the past the scholars here examine how individuals and groups that are being controlled necessarily participate in and shape the manner in which they are regulated Hardly passive victims of discipline and control these folks instead claimed agency in that process accepting and resisting and thus molding the controls under which they functioned In both volumes an introduction outlines the origins and the continuing value of the concept of social control The introductions are followed by two substantive sections The essays in part one of volume I focus on the interplay of ecclesiastical institutions and the emerging states those in part two of volume I look more explicitly at discipline from a bottom up perspective The essays in part one of volume 2 explore the various means by which communities generally working class communities in nineteenth and twentieth century Europe were subjected to forms of discipline in the workplace by the church and by philanthropic housing organizations It notes also how the communities themselves generated their own forms of internal control Part two of volume 2 focuses on various policing institutions exploring in particular the question of how liberal and totalitarian regimes differed in their styles of control repression and surveillance
