Experimental Capitalism Steven Klepper, 2015-12-29 How American industries rose to dominate the economic landscape in the twentieth century For much of the twentieth century American corporations led the world in terms of technological progress Why did certain industries have such great success Experimental Capitalism examines six key industries automobiles pneumatic tires television receivers semiconductors lasers and penicillin and tracks the highs and lows of American high tech capitalism and the resulting innovation landscape Employing nanoeconomics a deep dive into the formation and functioning of companies Steven Klepper determines how specific companies emerged to become the undisputed leaders that altered the course of their industry's evolution Klepper delves into why a small number of firms came to dominate their industries for many years after an initial period of tumult including General Motors Firestone and Intel Even though capitalism is built on the idea of competition among many he shows how the innovation process naturally led to such dominance Klepper explores how this domination influenced the search for further innovations He also considers why industries cluster in specific geographical areas such as semiconductors in northern California cars in Detroit and tires in Akron He finds that early leading firms serve as involuntary training grounds for the next generation of entrepreneurs who spin off new firms into the surrounding region Klepper concludes his study with a discussion of the impact of government and the potential for policy to enhance a nation's high tech industrial base A culmination of a lifetime of research and thought Experimental Capitalism takes a dynamic look at how new ideas and innovations led to America's economic primacy Ford
