

STANDARDS FOR PSYCHIATRIC HOSPITALS AND OUT-PATIENT CLINICS APPROVED BY THE AMERICAN PSYCHIATRIC ASSOCIATION (1945-46)

The Committee on Psychiatric Standards and Policies of the American Psychiatric Association is cognizant of the fact that the attention of the entire nation has been focused upon the need for adequate preventive and curative mental health services for all the people, and that there is a definite demand for such hospital and out-patient services within the means of all classes of society.

To comply with such popular demand, The American Psychiatric Association representing some 3,500 psychiatrists throughout the United States and Canada, through its Council, has approved the following standards and policies for all mental hospitals and out-patient clinics. The Council recognizes that such standards cannot be achieved within a short time, but it should be the goal of every hospital and clinic to establish them within ten years, thus qualifying as both a treatment and training centre.

STANDARDS FOR PSYCHIATRIC HOSPITALS

1. All hospitals should have a small unit or department which will take the place of the present receiving ward, where patients upon admission will remain a brief period (usually not to exceed two weeks) to be classified and housed according to their condition. This unit will require the services of a psychiatrist for every 30 patients under observation; a graduate nurse for every 4 patients and a trained attendant for every 6 patients under observation.

2. Approved hospitals should have a special unit or department for acutely mentally ill, where a patient will receive individual medical, psychiatric, nursing care and treatment, and individual services in the field of occupational, recreational and allied therapy. Intensive psychotherapy, in conjunction with physio-hydro-therapy, as well as modern organic therapy must be considered as indispensable in each case. The size of such a unit should accord with the admissions within a three- to six-months' period. This unit will have a small sub-unit for disturbed acutely ill individuals who will receive the same individual care and treatment.

All cases in the unit for acutely ill should be housed either in single rooms or in small dormitories. Such a unit will require a psychiatrist for every 30 patients; a graduate nurse for every 4 patients; a trained attendant for every 6 patients; a physio-hydro-therapist, an occupational-therapist, and a recreational therapist for every 30 patients requiring such treatment, and any other service indicated.

3. Hospitals should have a unit or department for a convalescing group where a patient will receive somewhat similar care, although not requiring as intensive treatment as in the unit for the acutely ill. The size of such a unit will be determined by the number of home convalescing patients during a period of six months. Such a unit will require a psychiatrist for every 50 patients; a graduate nurse for every 10 patients; a trained attendant for every 7 patients; an occupational therapist for every 30 patients; a recreational therapist for every 50 patients, and any other service indicated.

4. Hospitals assuming responsibility for patients with a favorable prognosis but who require intensive prolonged treatment and care should have a unit or department for such patients. Such a re-educational service will require a psychiatrist for every 75 patients; a graduate nurse for every 25 patients; a trained attendant for every 8 patients; a physio-hydro-therapist, an occupational-therapist and a recreational therapist for every 75 patients, and any other service indicated. This unit will have a special sub-unit for chronic disturbed patients.

5. Hospitals receiving patients who require continued treatment should have a special unit or department. Such a unit will need a psychiatrist for every 200 patients;
