Fr Neil Connolly's path through the South Bronx which began with a special Church program to address the postwar great Puerto Rican migration. After an immersion summer in Puerto Rico, Fr Neil served the largest concentration of Puerto Ricans in the Bronx from the 1960s to the 1980s as they struggled for a decent life. Through the teachings of Vatican II, Connolly assumed responsibility for creating a new Church and world in the war against drugs, poverty, and crime; he created a dynamic organization and chapel run by the people and supported Unitas, a unique peer-driven mental health program for youth. Frustrated by the lack of institutional responses to his community's challenges, he challenged government abandonment and spoke out against ill-conceived public plans. Ultimately, he realized that his priestly mission was in developing new leaders among people in the Church and the world and supporting two pioneering lay leadership programs: the Pastoral Center and People for Change. Angel Garcia ably blends the dynamic forces of Church and world that transformed Fr Connolly as he grew into his vocation. This book presents a rich history of the South Bronx and calls for all urban policies to begin with the people. It also affirms the continuing relevance of Vatican II and Medellín for today's Church and world in the US and Latin America. Garcia captures the spirit of the era and the spirit of the man. JAMA, 1922. Health Professions Education and Distribution Act of 1980 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Labor and Human Resources. Subcommittee on Health and Scientific Research, 1980. The Making of American Catholicism Michael J. Pfeifer, 2021-01-12. Traces the development of Catholic cultures in the South, the Midwest, the West, and the Northeast and their contribution to larger patterns of Catholicism in the United States. Most histories of American Catholicism take a national focus, leading to a homogenization of American Catholicism that misses much of the local complexity that has marked how Catholicism developed differently in different parts of the country. Such histories often treat northeastern Catholicism, such as the Irish Catholicism of Boston, as if it reflects the full history and experience of Catholicism across the United States. The Making of American Catholicism argues that regional and transnational relationships have been central to the development of American Catholicism. The American Catholic experience has diverged significantly among regions; if we do not examine how it has taken shape in local cultures, we miss a lot. Exploring the history of Catholic cultures in New Orleans, Iowa, Wisconsin, Los Angeles, and New York City, the volume assesses the role of region in American Catholic history, carefully exploring the development of American Catholic cultures across the continental United States. Drawing on extensive archival research, The Making of American Catholicism argues that American Catholicism developed as transnational Catholics creatively adapted their devotional and ideological practices in particular American regional contexts. They emphasized notions of republicanism, individualistic capitalism, race, ethnicity, and gender, resulting in a unique form of Catholicism that dominates the United States today. The book offers close attention to race and racism in American Catholicism, including the historical experiences of African American and Latinx Catholics as well as Catholics of
