The Allied Arts Sandra Alföldy, 2012-03-28 During periods of close collaboration championed by figures like John Ruskin and William Morris architecture and craft were referred to as the allied arts By the mid twentieth century however it was more common for the two disciplines to be considered distinct professional fields with architecture having little to do with studio craft The Allied Arts investigates the history of the complex relationship between craft and architecture by examining the intersection of these two areas in Canadian public buildings Sandra Alföldy explains the challenges facing the development of the field of public craft and documents the largely ignored public craft commissions of the post war era in Canada The book highlights the global concerns of material scale form ornament and identity shared by architects and craftspeople It also examines the ways in which the allied arts are mediated by institutions and the fragility of craft commissions once considered an integral part of the built environment Considering a wide range of craftspeople materials and forms from the ceramics of Jack Sures and Jordi Bonnet to the textile work of Mariette Rousseau Vermette and Carole Sabiston Alföldy celebrates the successes of architectural craftsmanship The first work of its kind The Allied Arts develops ideas about the complex relationship between architecture and craft that reach well beyond national boundaries

Architecture and the Arts and Crafts Movement in Boston Maureen Meister, 2003 H Langford Warren 1857 1917 was an important link in the chain of individuals who contributed to the architectural practice theories of design and the teaching of architectural history in the United States at the turn of the twentieth century Best known in the Boston area Warren first worked under the renowned architect Henry Hobson Richardson before establishing his own practice Friends and colleagues during this period included Charles Eliot Norton the noted art historian and Harvard's Charles Herbert Moore a leading Ruskinian painter Hired by Harvard University in 1893 Warren developed its architectural curriculum In 1897 he helped found Boston's Society of Arts and Crafts At the time of his death in 1917 Warren was Dean of the School of Architecture at Harvard and President of the Society of Arts and Crafts At the turn of the century Warren's philosophical vision offered a conservative and ethnocentric perspective attractive to many Bostonians and to a significant segment of Americans nationwide According to this view English culture was the basis of American culture Through his work at Harvard and in the Arts and Crafts movement he articulated and promoted an aesthetic guided by an attachment to the past and he encouraged his students at Harvard to revive and reinterpret English and Anglo American models Another characteristic of Warren's aesthetic was restraint a quality generally attributed to the region's Puritan settlers Restraint also meant a rejection of both the lavish ornamentation of the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris and the more original styles such as Art Nouveau that were emerging at the turn of the century Following the ideals of John Ruskin William Morris and later leaders of the English Arts and Crafts movement Warren and his architect colleagues promoted a close collaboration with the craftsmen who enhanced their buildings The resulting building designs represent a significant contribution to the development of American Arts and Crafts architecture complementing the proto modern work of designers such as Frank Lloyd Wright In fact Arts and Crafts architecture in North America was extremely diverse Meister examines the greater complexity of this architecture by exploring the eclectic historicism of Warren a key figure in the movement that was centered in Boston and stimulate their creativity Its rational basis and dependence on craft skills had lasting relevance and it was no coincidence that the most influential aspect of their work was its emphasis on conservation This new and updated paperback edition provides a guide to the general characteristics of Cotswold Arts and Crafts structures with chapters on the various types of new commissions to be found as well as repair and remodeling projects The final chapter discusses the late flowering of Arts and Crafts work that occurred during the interwar period and beyond and the legacy of this important body of work at a local and national level
