Sounding the Color Line Erich Nunn, 2015

Sounding the Color Line explores how competing understandings of the U S South in the first decades of the twentieth century have led us to experience musical forms sounds and genres in racialized contexts Yet though we may speak of white or black music rock or rap sounds constantly leak through such barriers A critical disjuncture exists then between actual interracial musical and cultural forms on the one hand and racialized structures of feeling on the other This is nowhere more apparent than in the South Like Jim Crow segregation the separation of musical forms along racial lines has required enormous energy to maintain How asks Nunn did the protocols structuring listeners racial associations arise How have they evolved and been maintained in the face of repeated transgressions of the musical color line Considering the South as the imagined ground where conflicts of racial and national identities are staged this book looks at developing ideas concerning folk song and racial and cultural nationalism alongside the competing and sometimes contradictory workings of an emerging culture industry Drawing on a diverse archive of musical recordings critical artifacts and literary texts Nunn reveals how the musical color line has not only been established and maintained but also repeatedly crossed fractured and reformed This push and pull between segregationist cultural logics and music s disrespect of racially defined boundaries is an animating force in twentieth century American popular culture
