Teaching And Learning History History Teachers In The Making:

History Teachers in the Making Anna Pendry, Christopher T. Husbands, 1998 Mentoring and reflective practice have become central elements in the development of teacher learning This book examines the processes which support mentors in service co ordinators and heads of history departments in their professional developmental work with student teachers newly qualified teachers and experienced colleagues Key aspects of mentoring are examined and the book offers practical guidance on topics such as collaborative teaching observation and discursive mentoring

The Guided Reader to Teaching and Learning History Richard Harris, Katharine Burn, Mary Woolley, 2013-10-15 The Guided Reader to Teaching and Learning History draws on extracts from the published work of some of the most influential history education writers representing a range of perspectives from leading classroom practitioners to academic researchers and highlighting key debates surrounding a central range of issues affecting secondary History teachers This book brings together key extracts from classic and contemporary writing and contextualises these in both theoretical and practical terms Each extract is accompanied by an introduction a summary of the key points and issues raised questions to promote discussion and suggestions for further reading to extend thinking Taking a thematic approach and including a short introduction to each theme the chapters include The purpose of history education Pupil perspectives on history education Assessment and progression in history Inclusion in history Diversity in history Teaching difficult issues Technology and history education Change and continuity Historical Interpretations Professional development for history teachers Aimed at trainee and newly qualified teachers including those working towards Masters level qualifications as well as existing teachers this accessible but critically provocative text is an essential resource for those that wish to deepen their understanding of History Education

Making Every History Lesson Count Chris Runeckles, 2018-10-23 Chris Runeckles Making Every History Lesson Count Six principles to support great history teaching offers lasting solutions to age old problems and empowers history teachers with the confidence to bring their subject to life Making EveryHistory Lesson Count goes in search of answers to the crucial question that all history teachers must ask What can I do to help my students retain and interrogate the rich detail of the content that I deliver Writing in the practical engaging style of the award winning Making Every Lesson Count Chris Runeckles articulates the fundamentals of great history teaching and shares simple realistic strategies designed to deliver memorable lessons The book is underpinned by six pedagogical principles challenge explanation modelling practice feedback and questioning and equips history teachers with the tools and techniques to help students better engage with the subject matter and develop more sophisticated historical analysis and arguments In an age of educational quick fixes and ever moving goalposts this carefully crafted addition to the Making Every Lesson Count series expertly bridges the gap between the realms of academic research and the humble classroom It therefore marries evidence based practice with collective experience and in doing so inspires a challenging approach to secondary school history teaching Making EveryHistory Lesson

Count has been written for new and experienced practitioners alike offering gimmick free advice that will energise them to more effectively carve out those unique moments of resonance with young people Each chapter also concludes with a series of questions that will prompt reflective thought and enable educators to relate the content to their own classroom practice Suitable for history teachers of students aged 11 to 16 years History Teachers in the Making Anna Pendry, Christopher T. Husbands, 1998 How can experienced history teachers help both beginning teachers and other members of the history department to develop and improve their practice How do history departments improve and develop What is distinctive about history teaching and learning Recent research has placed emphasis on both the continuum of teacher learning from initial training to continuing professional development and the importance of subject knowledge in classroom effectiveness This innovative book draws these issues together it examines the nature of professional learning throughout teaching careers grounded in the culture research and practice of one school subject It begins by examining history student teacher learning focusing on practical strategies for school based mentoring in history The second section examines the nature of history teacher development in the first year of teaching whilst the third links individual and department development explicitly to classroom effectiveness Throughout the book draws on practical classroom experience and recent research providing both specific case study examples and generalisable arguments
