

Introducing the Language Arts

EXAMPLES OF TEACHER COMPETENCIES*

1. The teacher will be able to state the components of language arts.
2. The teacher will be able to describe and give examples of how the language arts are interrelated.
3. The teacher will be able to define decoding and encoding and give examples of each.
4. The teacher will be able to define communication and language and explain the relationship between language and communication.
5. The teacher will be able to explain the relationship between communication and nonverbal behavior.
6. The teacher will be able to explain the importance of correct interpretation of culturally different children's nonverbal behavior.

What Are the Language Arts and How Are They Interrelated?

Language arts are listening, speaking, reading, and writing.

Did you know that elementary-school children spend about 57 percent of their time supposedly listening; that is, 57 percent of the time in elementary school someone is speaking and the students may or may not be engaged in the act of listening?

After you have finished reading Chapter 5 of this book, you will be able to make the children's listening time in class more effective and you will also comprehend how listening affects the other language arts areas. Perhaps, you will become a better listener yourself.

*The examples of teacher competencies presented at the beginning of each chapter in this book usually will not include the standard that will be used to measure the success of the performance or the conditions under which the behavior is to be performed. (See Chapters 15 and 18.)
