Teaching Human Rights:

Teaching Human Rights in Literary and Cultural Studies Alexandra Schultheis Moore, Elizabeth Swanson
Goldberg, 2015-11-01 Since the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 1948 the discourse of human rights has expanded to include not just civil and political rights but economic social cultural and most recently collective rights Given their broad scope human rights issues are useful touchstones in the humanities classroom and benefit from an interdisciplinary and cross cultural pedagogy in which objects of study are situated in historical legal philosophical literary and rhetorical contexts Teaching Human Rights in Literary and Cultural Studies is a sourcebook of inventive approaches and best practices for teachers looking to make human rights the focus of their undergraduate and graduate courses Contributors first explore what it means to be human and conceptual issues such as law and the state Next they approach human rights and related social justice issues from the perspectives of particular geographic regions and historical eras through the lens of genre and in relation to specific rights violations for example storytelling and testimonio in Latin America or poetry created in the aftermath of the Armenian genocide Essays then describe efforts to cultivate students capacity for ethical reading practices and to deepen their understanding of the stakes and artistic dimensions of human rights representations drawing on active learning and experimental class contexts The final section on resources directs readers to further readings in history criticism theory and literary and visual studies and provides a chronology of human rights legal documents

ABC United Nations. Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, 2004 This publication contains guidance on key areas of basic human rights education for teachers in primary and secondary schools designed to assist in infusing human rights issues into subjects already taught in the school curriculum The texts of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights 1948 and the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child 1989 are included as annexes Suggestions for practical learning activities are included each of which has been defined in terms of particular issue areas
