Because Teaching Matters Marleen C. Pugach, 2005-11-25 The concept of making choices as a teacher and taking responsibility for the consequences of those choices is a central theme of this book. It is organized around five professional commitments that taken together are essential if teaching is going to make a difference in the lives of students. This innovative organizing structure uses the five commitments to help readers think in a more informed way about issues that affect their initial concerns when making the decision to teach as well as their professional development as teachers.

Teaching Matters Beverly Falk, Megan Blumenreich, 2012 As public schools become increasingly embattled by budget shortfalls, crowded buildings, and ever more rigid curricula, the burden of these restrictions has drastically changed the way children are expected to learn. Nowhere is this more obvious or more devastating than in classrooms in high need urban areas. Drawing upon teachers' firsthand experiences in some of today's most demanding schools, leading education experts Beverly Falk and Megan Blumenreich provide an enlightening account of what our students really need and how teachers are stepping up to provide what state standards and political posturing cannot. Teaching Matters takes us into a variety of classrooms to witness the art of teaching at its most creative and effective, with a focus on early childhood and elementary school. We follow educators as they strive to change systems that fail to address the needs of their students, from efforts to break the silence about homophobia in schools and multipronged strategies to build stronger relationships with immigrant families to the modification of ineffective curriculum to foster the growth of the whole child. By confronting many misconceptions about urban education and school reform, Falk and Blumenreich provide a crucial insider's look at some of the most challenging and relevant questions in education today.

Why Teaching Matters Paul Farber, Dini Metro-Roland, 2020-02-20 Why Teaching Matters is an introductory guide to core elements of teaching, getting to the heart of what teaching is and why it matters. Paul Farber and Dini Metro-Roland introduce the following 8 elements which encompass the many issues, themes, and social complexities of teaching: Conveying Care, Enacting Authority, Cultivating Virtue, Interpreting Subject matter, Rendering Judgment, Articulating Purpose, Establishing a Sense of Place, Engaging Presence. The focus on the elements of practice frames discussion of teaching as an essential human activity and highlights the kinds of significant issues that teachers face, including technology, social inequality, and the management and evaluation of their work. As a philosophical guide, it introduces and draws upon a range of thinkers including Nel Noddings, Hannah Arendt, Hans Georg Gadamer, Danielle Allen, and James Baldwin, whose work informs a deeper understanding of teaching. The theoretical discussions are grounded with examples and anecdotes from the classroom so that theory is always connected with practice and questions for further inquiry appear at the end of each chapter Intended for students of education and for new and experienced teachers alike as well as anyone interested in the impact of teaching Why Teaching Matters explores the inherent complexity and challenges of teaching offering a comprehensive account of the many ways in which teaching matters
