

Practice tip: How to assess and support students with reading and speech sound difficulties

A school-aged child with a history of a speech sound disorder is at a significantly increased risk of reading difficulties.

About 25-30%

of children with reading difficulties have a history of speech sound disorders in preschool.

When assessing the reading skills of a school-aged child with a persistent speech sound disorder (or history), professionals need to go beyond just checking grapheme-phoneme links and word recognition skills, and assess:

- motor-speech production skills, e.g. on phonologically complex, polysyllabic words, syllable sequencing and production tasks; and
- oral language skills, including vocabulary, morphology, syntax, and social use in discourse.

When supporting a student with reading difficulties and a persistent speech sound disorder (e.g. childhood apraxia of speech), we should take an integrated approach combining:

- speech sound production practice;
- explicit training of phoneme-grapheme links, and blending & segmenting skills; and
- (if needed) explicit support for oral and written expressive language development, including at the sentence and discourse levels.
