Hannah Frank provides an original way to understand American animated cartoons from the Golden Age of animation 1920-1960. In the pre-digital age of the twentieth century, the making of cartoons was mechanized and standardized: thousands of drawings were inked and painted onto individual transparent celluloid sheets called cels and then photographed in succession, a labor-intensive process that was divided across scores of artists and technicians. In order to see the art labor and technology of cel animation, Frank slows cartoons down to look frame by frame, finding hitherto unseen aspects of the animated image. What emerges is both a methodology and a highly original account of an art formed on the assembly line.

Walford's Guide to Reference Material Albert John Walford, Anthony P. Harvey, Laurence John Taylor, H. Drubba, 1980

The Academic Library in the United States Mark L. McCallon, John Mark Tucker, 2022-10-10. This book advances the belief that the library more than any other cultural institution collects, curates, and distributes the results of human thought. Essays broaden the debate about academic libraries beyond only professional circles, promoting the library as a vital resource for the whole of higher education. Topics range from library histories to explorations of changing media. Essayists connect modern libraries to the remarkable dream of Alexandria's ancient library, facilitating groundbreaking research in every imaginable field of human interest, past, present, and future. Academic librarians, who are most familiar with historical traditions, are best qualified to promote the library as an important aspect of teaching and learning, as well as to develop resources that will enlighten future generations of readers. The intellectual tools for compelling, constructive conversation come from the narrative of the library in its many iterations, from the largest research university to the smallest liberal arts or community college.
