Studies Voltaire 18th Century Volume 365:

Enlightenment and Emancipation Susan Manning, Peter France, 2006 The Enlightenment has been represented in radically opposing ways on the one hand as the throwing off of the chains of superstition custom and usurped authority on the other hand in the Romantic period but also more recently as what Michel Foucault termed the great confinement in which mind forged manacles imprison the free and irrational spirit The debate about the Enlightenment project remains a topical one which can still arouse fierce passions This collection of essays by distinguished scholars from various disciplines addresses the central question Was Enlightenment a force for emancipation Their responses working from within and frequently across the disciplinary lines of history political science economics music literature aesthetics art history and film reveal unsuspected connections and divergences even between well known figures and texts In their turn the essays suggest the need for further inquiry in areas that turn out to be very far from closed The volume considers major writings in unusual juxtaposition highlights new figures of importance and demonstrates familiar texts to embody strange implications Publisher's website

David Hume's Political Economy Margaret Schabas, Carl Wennerlind, 2008 This collection of twelve new essays by distinguished scholars in the fields of history and the philosophy of economics is one of the first book length studies of Hume's political economy

The Literary Channel Margaret Cohen, Carolyn Dever, 2009-02-14 The Literary Channel defines a crucial transnational literary zone that shaped the development of the modern novel During the first two centuries of the genre's history Britain and France were locked in political economic and military struggle The period also saw British and French writers critics and readers enthusiastically exchanging works codes and theories of the novel Building on both nationally based literary history and comparatist work on poetics this book rethinks the genre's evolution as marking the power and limits of modern cultural nationalism In the Channel zone the novel developed through interactions among texts readers writers and translators that inextricably linked national literary cultures It served as a forum to promote and critique nationalist clichés whether from the standpoint of Enlightenment cosmopolitanism the insurgent nationalism of colonized spaces or the non nationalized culture of consumption In the process the Channel zone promoted codes that became the genre's hallmarks including the sentimental poetics that would shape fiction through the nineteenth century Uniting leading critics who bridge literary history and theory The Literary Channel will appeal to all readers attentive to the future of literary studies as well as those interested in the novel's development British and French cultural history and extra national patterns of cultural exchange Contributors include April Alliston Emily Apter Margaret Cohen Joan DeJean Carolyn Dever Lynn Festa Fran oise Lionnet Deidre Shauna Lynch Sharon Marcus Richard Maxwell and Mary Helen McMurren Comparative Criticism: Volume 9, Cultural Perceptions and Literary Values E. S. Shaffer, 1987-10-29 The ninth volume of this annual journal continues the consideration of the relations of European with non European literatures begun in volume 8 It brings the series of special bibliographies on the history of comparative literary studies in the UK up to 1965 and contains the annual bibliography of comparative literature covering 1984 Unnaturally French Peter Sahlins, 2018-08-06 In his rich and learned new book about the naturalization of foreigners Peter Sahlins offers an unusual and unexpected contribution to the histories of immigration nationality and citizenship in France and Europe Through a study of foreign citizens Sahlins discovers and documents a premodern world of legal citizenship its juridical and administrative fictions and its social practices Telling the story of naturalization from the sixteenth to the early nineteenth centuries Unnaturally French offers an original interpretation of the continuities and ruptures of absolutist and modern citizenship in the process challenging the historiographical centrality of the French Revolution Unnaturally French is a brilliant synthesis of social legal and political history At its core are the tens of thousands of foreign citizens whose exhaustively researched social identities and geographic origins are presented here for the first time Sahlins makes a signal contribution to the legal history of nationality in his comprehensive account of the theory procedure and practice of naturalization In his political history of the making and unmaking of the French absolute monarchy Sahlins considers the shifting policies toward immigrants foreign citizens and state membership Sahlins argues that the absolute citizen exemplified in Louis XIV's attempt to tax all foreigners in 1697 gave way to new practices in the middle of the eighteenth century This citizenship revolution long before 1789 produced changes in private and in political culture that led to the abolition of the distinction between foreigners and citizens Sahlins shows how the Enlightenment and the political failure of the monarchy in France laid the foundations for the development of an exclusively political citizen in opposition to the absolute citizen who had been above all a legal subject The author completes his original book with a study of naturalization under Napoleon and the Bourbon Restoration Tracing the twisted history of the foreign citizen from the Old Regime to the New Sahlins sheds light on the continuities and ruptures of the revolutionary process and also its consequences

Barbary and Enlightenment Ann Thomson, 1987-06-01 This book based on a wide range of eighteenth century works concerns European attitude towards North Africa in the century preceding the French conquest of Algiers in 1830 It studies the radical transformation of perceptions of Barbary during the period essentially by placing them in the context of the different eighteenth century systems of classification of the world We see that uncertainty as to how to classify this region its inhabitants its form of government and social evolution which led to its absence from most contemporary anthropological discussions was resolved in the early nineteenth century with the appearance of what were to become colonial stereotypes

Human Nature, Cultural Diversity, and the French Enlightenment Henry Vyverberg, 1989-08-17 In this work Henry Vyverberg traces the evolution and consequences of a crucial idea in French Enlightenment thought the idea of human nature Human nature was commonly seen as a broadly universal unchanging entity though perhaps modifiable by geographical social and historical factors Enlightenment empiricism suggested a degree of cultural diversity that has often been underestimated in studies of the age. Evidence here is drawn from Diderot's celebrated Encyclopedia and from a vast range of writing by such Enlightenment notables as Voltaire, Rousseau and d'Holbach. Vyverberg explains not only the age's undoubted fascination with uniformity in human nature but also its acknowledgment of significant limitations on that uniformity. He shows that although the Enlightenment's historical sense was often blinkered by its notions of a uniform human nature, there were also cracks in this concept that developed during the Enlightenment itself.

Samson Raphael Hirsch's Religious Universalism and the German-Jewish Quest for Emancipation Moshe Y. Miller, 2024-02-20 In Samson Raphael Hirsch's Religious Universalism and the German Jewish Quest for Emancipation Moshe Miller argues that nineteenth century German Jews of all persuasions actively sought acceptance within German society and aspired to achieve full emancipation from the many legal strictures on their status as citizens and residents. But where non-Orthodox Jews sought a large measure of cultural assimilation, Orthodox Jews were content with more delimited acculturation. However, they were no less enthusiastic about achieving emancipation and acceptance in German society. There was one issue though which was seen by non-Jewish critics of emancipation as a barrier to granting civic rights to Jews: namely the alleged tribalism of the Jewish ethic and the supposedly Orthodox notion of Jews as the Chosen People. These charges could not go unanswered and in the writings of Rabbi Samson Raphael Hirsch (1808-1888), a leading thinker of the Orthodox camp, they did not. Hirsch stressed the universalism of the Jewish ethic and the humanistic concern for the welfare of all mankind, which he believed was one of the core teachings of Judaism. His colleagues in the German Orthodox rabbinate largely concurred with Hirsch's assessment. This account places Hirsch's views in their historical context and provides a detailed account of his attitude toward non-Jews and the Christianity practiced by the vast majority of nineteenth century Europeans.

The Enterprise of Enlightenment

Terry Pratt, David McCallum, 2004. It brings together a collection of essays from some of the most prestigious international names in the field and tackles subjects which expose in all their splendid diversity the enterprise, both innovation and undertaking, of the Siccle des Lumières.

eighteenth century culture The Grand Tour was considered a part of the education of a young gentleman Travellers included blossoming scholars poets writers and scientists Visits were made to Greece and Italy via France and Switzerland often taking in Turkey But women also traveled extensively though these accounts have been under explored The book will examine first hand accounts of the impact of foreign travel on both women and men seen through their letters travel diaries journals and their creative response in poems music and art Its originality is seen in its exploration of a comparison between the views of women and men abroad and the differences in what they deemed interesting and worthy of comment The book is especially relevant in light of the many past and current xenophobic views of the foreigner Here we more often see travellers viewing their experience of otherness and exoticism in a positive light a cultural appreciation rather than a cultural appropriation This book examines how men and women saw these new worlds opening up before them what delighted them what influenced them and their interaction with others in the light of domesticity antiquity politics work science sex and friendships

The Centre and the Margins in Eighteenth-Century British and Italian Cultures Lia Guerra, Frank O'Gorman, 2014-07-18 The relationship between the cultural Centre and cultural Margins has fascinated scholars for generations Who or what determines what shall constitute the Centre of a culture its sacred and canonical forms and substance and what the Margins There are significant examples of the Margins of one generation moving to become the Centre of another These are more than mere shifts of fashion and represent nothing less than a seismic cultural shift How and in what circumstances can such a
