Studies In Modern Irish Part II:

Calendar, 1921      The Irish Ecclesiastical Record, 1921      Morphosyntactic Variation in Medieval Celtic Languages

Elliott Lash, Fangzhe Qiu, David Stifter, 2020-10-12 This book showcases the state of the art in the corpus based linguistics of medieval Celtic languages. Its chapters detail theoretical advances in analysing variation change in the Celtic languages and computational tools necessary to process analyse the data. Many contributions situate the Celtic material in the broader field of corpus based diachronic linguistics. The application of computational methods to Celtic languages is in its infancy and this book is a first in medieval Celtic Studies which has mainly concentrated on philological endeavours such as editorial and literary work. The Celtic languages represent a new frontier in the development of NLP tools because they pose special challenges like complicated inflectional morphology with non straightforward mappings between lemmata and attested forms irregular orthography and consonant mutations. With so much data available in non electronic form and ongoing efforts to convert these data to computer readable format there is much room for the developing testing of new tools. This book provides an overview of this process at a crucial time in the development of the field and aims to the data accessible to computational linguists with an interest in diachronic change.

Modernism, Ireland and the Erotics of Memory Nicholas Andrew Miller, 2002-09-19 In Modernism Ireland and the Erotics of Memory Nicholas Miller re examines memory and its role in modern Irish culture. Arguing that a continuous renegotiation of memory is characteristic of Irish modernist writing Miller investigates a series of case studies in modern Irish historical imagination. He reassesses Ireland's self construction through external or foreign discourses such as the cinema and proposes readings of Yeats and Joyce as counter memorialists. Combining theoretical and historical approaches Miller shows how the modernist handling of history transforms both memory and the story of the past by highlighting readers investments in histories that are produced specifically and concretely through local acts of reading. This original study will attract scholars of Modernism Irish studies film and literary theory.

Ireland in Proximity David Alderson, Fiona Becket, Scott Brewster, Virginia Crossman, 2002-01-22 Ireland in Proximity surveys and develops the expanding field of Irish Studies reviewing existing debates within the discipline and providing new avenues for exploration. Drawing on a variety of disciplinary and theoretical approaches this impressive collection of essays makes an innovative contribution to three areas of current and often contentious debate within Irish Studies. This accessible volume illustrates the diversity of thinking on Irish history culture and identity. By invoking theoretical perspectives including psychoanalysis cultural theories of space postcoloniality and theories of gender and sexual difference the collection offers fresh perspectives on established subjects and brings new and under represented areas of critical concern to the fore. Chapter subjects include sexuality and gender identities the historiographical issues surrounding the Famine the Irish diaspora theories of space in relation to Ulster and beyond. Food and Architecture is the first book to explore the relationship between these two fields of study and practice. Bringing together leading voices from both food studies and architecture, it provides a ground-breaking cross-disciplinary analysis of two disciplines which both rely on a combination of creativity, intuition, taste, and science but have rarely been engaged in direct dialogue. Each of the four sections—Regionalism, Sustainability, Craft, and Authenticity—focuses on a core area of overlap between food and architecture. Structured around a series of conversations between chefs, culinary historians, and architects, each theme is explored through a variety of case studies ranging from pig slaughtering and farmhouses in Greece to authenticity and heritage in American cuisine. Drawing on a range of approaches from both disciplines, methodologies include practice-based research, literary analysis, memoir, and narrative. The end of each section features a commentary by Samantha Martin McAuliffe, which emphasizes key themes and connections. This compelling book is invaluable reading for students and scholars in food studies and architecture, as well as practicing chefs and architects. American Universities and Colleges
