the 2000 Northeastern Recreation Research Symposium, April 2-4, 2000, The Sagamore on Lake George in Bolton Landing, New York ,2000 Time Use Research in the Social Sciences Wendy E. Pentland,M. Powell Lawton,Andrew

S. Harvey,Mary Ann McColl,2007-05-08 Despite the fact that for most of us time is a central focus of our lives the examination of what we do with our time and why has received limited attention as a method for understanding human behavior in the social sciences Humans view and use of time shows tremendous variation including across cultures and with age lifestyle and gender For many of us a sense of time is ever present We speak of time as a commodity a resource an ally an enemy and a gift It maybe on our side on our hands with us or against us We perceive it to change speeds dragging vs flying vs standing still and lest it get away on us we attempt to harness and control it with clocks schedules and deadlines We describe our use of time in a myriad of ways we spend it save it waste it kill it give it take it and grab it The impetus for this book grew from a three day research symposium where established time use researchers from a variety of disciplines from Canada the United States Finland Australia and New Zealand gathered together to merge their knowledge and resources to collaborate in examining the relationship between human time utilization and health and well being We gratefully acknowledge the financial support for the symposium received from the Government of Canada's Program for International Research Linkages and M Powell Lawton without whose support and encouragement this book would likely not exist General Technical Report NE ,1980

The Journal of Tourism Studies ,1996 Qualitative Research in Tourism Jenny Phillimore,Lisa Goodson,2004 Whilst qualitative approaches are beginning to be more commonly used and accepted in tourism discussions of research methods have rarely moved beyond practical considerations Limited attention given to the underlying philosophical and theoretical underpinnings that influence the research process This book links the theory with research practice to offer a more holistic account of how qualitative research can be used in tourism Promoting Mental Health and Wellbeing

Among Young People Maj Britt Dahl Nielsen,Susan Andersen,Sigurd Lauridsen,2025-09-10 Mental disorders account for a large proportion of the disease burden in young people and poor mental health is strongly related to lower educational achievements and labor market attainment and other health problems including substance abuse violence and poor reproductive and sexual health Evidence suggests that the COVID 19 pandemic might have had a negative effect on young people's mental health and knowledge about secular trends in well being and mental health problems is important for planning public health interventions Research on health promotion and preventive interventions remains scarce and the mental health needs of young people are often unmet and research is urgently needed to develop affordable and feasible interventions In Denmark and other countries the mental health of young people has been declining especially in the wake of COVID 19 The main goal of this research topic is to further our understanding of trends in mental health and well being among young people and aid the development of feasible and effective public health interventions This Research Topic welcomes empirical studies including qualitative quantitative and mixed method research design papers and systematic reviews focusing on but not limited to the following sub topics Trends in mental health and well being among young people The impact of COVID 19 on mental health and wellbeing New and emerging risks for mental health and well being for example related to online and mobile technology Barriers to treatment Development of affordable and feasible community based interventions Implementation and effectiveness of preventive and health promotion interventions including universal interventions and interventions targeting vulnerable groups
