- Social Psychology: scientific study of how we think about, influence, and relate to each other
 - Emphasis on the situation, rather than the person
- Fundamental Attribution Error
 - Attribution Theory: we explain someone's behavior by crediting either the situation or the person's disposition
 - If you have a hostile child and you say it's because they have an aggressive personality you're saying it's their disposition, but if you say it's because of stress or abuse it's the situation
 - Fundamental attribution error: tendency for observers, when analyzing another's behavior, to underestimate the impact of the situation, and overestimate personal disposition
 - Ex: getting cut off on the highway – you say they're a jerk so they cut you off (disposition), but it's possible that the situation led to them cutting you off
 - More pronounced in Western (individualistic cultures) than Eastern (collectivistic cultures)
 - Observations of self vs. others
 - Effects of Attribution – personal, political, employment
- Attitudes and Actions

 - Attitudes affect actions
 - Central route to persuasion: focus on arguments and respond with favorable thoughts
 - Peripheral route to persuasion: influenced by incidental cues (ex: speakers attractiveness)
 - Attitudes follow behavior: I act therefore I believe
 - Foot-in-the-door phenomenon: the tendency for people who have first agreed to a small request to comply later with a larger request
 - Role Playing Affect Attitudes
 - Role: set of expectations (norms) about social position, that define how those in that position ought to behave
 - Ex: Stanford prison study
 - Person-situation interaction: there's no such thing as bad people, people do bad things because of the situation that they're in (Zimbardo's theory)
 - Actions Affect Attitudes
 - Cognitive Dissonance: Relief from tension
 - When our attitudes and actions are opposed, we experience tension, change attitude to bring it into line with actions

Expanded discussions of different kinds of qualitative study samples and of mixed methods. New ideas on how to avoid getting stalled when analyzing qualitative data. Consideration of an additional way of concluding a qualitative study by taking action. Pedagogical Features: Chapters start with an abstract and end with a suggested exercise. Understanding Interaction Bert Bongers, 2021-12-22 Understanding Interaction explores the interaction between people and technology in the broader context of the relations between the human-made and the natural environments. It is not just about digital technologies, our computers, smartphones, the Internet, but all our technologies such as mechanical, electrical and electronic. Our ancestors started creating mechanical tools and shaping their environments millions of years ago, developing cultures and languages which in turn influenced our evolution. Volume 1 looks into this deep history starting from the tool creating period, the longest and most influential on our physical and mental capacities, to the settlement period, agriculture, domestication, villages and cities, written language, the industrial period, science, engineering, reformation and renaissance, and finally the communication period, mass media, digital technologies and global networks. Volume 2 looks into humans in interaction, our physiology, anatomy, neurology, psychology, how we experience and influence the world and how we think. From this transdisciplinary understanding, design approaches and frameworks are presented to potentially guide future developments and innovations. The aim of the book is to be a guide and inspiration for designers, artists, engineers, psychologists, media producers, social scientists, etc. and as such be useful for both novices and more experienced practitioners.
