J. Wilkinson, 2003-11-01 Society for American Archaeology Book Award Winner Many fundamental studies of the origins of states have built upon landscape data but an overall study of the Near Eastern landscape itself has never been attempted Spanning thousands of years of history the ancient Near East presents a bewildering range of landscapes the understanding of which can greatly enhance our ability to infer past political and social systems Tony Wilkinson now shows that throughout the Holocene humans altered the Near Eastern environment so thoroughly that the land has become a human artifact albeit one that retains the power to shape human societies In this trailblazing book the first to describe and explain the development of the Near Eastern landscape using archaeological data Wilkinson identifies specific landscape signatures for various regions and periods from the early stages of complex societies in the fifth to sixth millennium B C to the close of the Early Islamic period around the tenth century A D From Bronze Age city states to colonized steppes these signature landscapes of irrigation systems tells and other features changed through time along with changes in social economic political and environmental conditions By weaving together the record of the human landscape with evidence of settlement the environment and social and economic conditions Wilkinson provides a holistic view of the ancient Near East that complements archaeological excavations cuneiform texts and other conventional sources Through this overview culled from thirty years research Wilkinson establishes a new framework for understanding the economic and physical infrastructure of the region By describing the basic attributes of the ancient cultural landscape and placing their development within the context of a dynamic environment he breaks new ground in landscape archaeology and offers a new context for understanding the ancient Near East

Alice Mouton, Ian Rutherford, Ilya Yakubovich, 2013-06-03 The Luwians inhabited Anatolia and Syria in late second through early first millennium BC They are mainly known through their Indo European language preserved on cuneiform tablets and hieroglyphic stelae However where the Luwians lived or came from how they coexisted with their Hittite and Greek neighbors and the peculiarities of their religion and material culture are all debatable matters A conference convened in Reading in June 2011 in order to discuss the current state of the debate summarize points of disagreement and outline ways of addressing them in future research The papers presented at this conference were collected in the present volume whose goal is to bring into being a new interdisciplinary field Luwian Studies To conclude the editors of this volume on Luwian identities and the authors of the individual papers are to be congratulated with a successful sequel to The Luwians of 2003 edited by Melchert and with yet another substantial brick in the foundation of the incipient discipline of Luwian studies Fred C Woudhuizen
