Studies In Irish Cistercian History:

Studies in Irish Cistercian History Colmcille Ó Conbhuidhe, 1998 1998 marks the 900th anniversary of the foundation of the abbey of Cîteaux by St Robert of Molesmes St Alberic St Stephen Harding and the first companions who established the Cistercian Order This book traces the history of the Irish Cistercians from their decline and attempted reform on the eve of the Reformation 1445 1531 up to the death of the last Irish Cistercian monk of Holy Cross Abbey Fr Edmund Cormick sometime between 1731 and 1752 The Cistercian Order in Medieval Europe Emilia Jamroziak, 2015-06-22 The Cistercian Order in Medieval Europe offers an accessible and engaging history of the Order from its beginnings in the twelfth century through to the early sixteenth century Unlike most other existing volumes on this subject it gives a nuanced analysis of the late medieval Cistercian experience as well as the early years of the Order Jamroziak argues that the story of the Cistercian Order in the Middle Ages was not one of a Golden Age followed by decline nor was the true Cistercian spirit exclusively embedded in the early texts to remain unchanged for centuries Instead she shows how the Order functioned and changed over time as an international organisation held together by a novel management system from Estonia in the east to Portugal in the west and from Norway to Italy The ability to adapt and respond to these very different social and economic conditions is what made the Cistercians so successful This book draws upon a wide range of primary sources as well as scholarly literature in several languages to explore the following key areas the degree of centralisation versus local specificity how much the contact between monastic communities and lay people changed over time how the concept of reform was central to the Medieval history of the Cistercian Order This book will appeal to anyone interested in Medieval history and the Medieval Church more generally as well as those with a particular interest in monasticism A Monastic Landscape Dr Breda Lynch, 2010-11-05 This publication is primarily a study of the various aspects of the use and situation of the land held by the Cistercian order in medieval Leinster A number of key topics form the central elements of this study These include an examination of the physical landscape into which the Cistercian order settled and the changes that occurred within that landscape during the later medieval era The book examines whether the location of the monasteries indicated any underlying nuances or if the monks were happy to settle wherever they were given land The involvement of the Cistercian order in the agricultural and economic life of Leinster is also examined A breakdown of the acreage and land type that the monasteries possessed is presented and in the final section the state of the monasteries immediately prior to the dissolution of the religious houses in the period 1536 41 is determined With regard to this final section the areas of interest are in relation to the physical remains of the monasteries the productivity or otherwise of the associated lands the organisation and location of that land and the general attitude of the Cistercian monks at that particular time in history There are many different areas of study that were examined These include the identification of the lands the land type and trends or differences in this type when compared with other parts of the country The organisation of the land and the uses of it in relation to the monastery

are an essential aspect of the work and is possible to identify economic and social change by discussing the uses of that land. The identification of granges and grange buildings was not originally intended as part of this work however research has allowed some evidence to emerge in relation to these buildings and is included. In relation to the approach a short chapter outlining the origins of monasticism and the emergence of the Cistercian Order is included. A brief outline of the governing rules of the Cistercians is included in chapter one as is a short discussion on the spread of the order up to its arrival in Ireland. The second chapter is merely intended to give an idea of the pattern of the distribution of the Cistercian monasteries in Ireland. Most of the information is in table form giving the monastery its location date of foundation and founder. From this a number of observations can be made. The principal area of study is Leinster therefore chapter three deals with this territory discussing its boundaries both internal and external and the kingdoms that made up medieval Leinster. The fact that the monasteries of Leinster were situated in very well defined territories means that although the study is of Leinster as a whole these smaller somewhat independent units were still an important element in both the landscape and the social framework of the period. As such it was necessary to ensure that each of these units was represented in any category of study. The location of the monasteries is the focus of the second portion of chapter three. Both the natural and man made features of the landscape are examined here. The proximity of road and route ways to the monasteries has been mapped and discussed and any trends or patterns commented upon. Chapter four deals with the monastic complex and the associated features. It discusses the way in which the monastery and its lands were organised and the reasons for this. This chapter deals more with the day to day requirements of the monks and indicates how both the land and the buildings within the complex were equally important and key elements in the functioning of the monasteries. Following from chapter four and keeping earlier comments in mind the next portion of the work deals with other land that particular monasteries may have held at any time from foundation up to the time when the extents of the monastic possessions were drawn up. Instead of looking

The Transformation of the Irish Church in the Twelfth and Thirteenth Centuries Marie Therese Flanagan, 2010 The twelfth century saw a wide ranging transformation of the Irish church a regional manifestation of a wider pan European reform movement This book the first to offer a full account of this change moves away from the previous concentration on the restructuring of Irish dioceses and episcopal authority and the introduction of Continental monastic observances to widen the discussion It charts changes in the religious culture experienced by the laity as well as the clergy and takes account of the particular Irish experience within the wider European context The universal ideals that were defined with increasing clarity by Continental advocates of reform generated a series of initiatives from Irish churchmen aimed at disseminating reform ideology within clerical circles and transmitting it also to lay society even if as elsewhere it often proved difficult to implement in practice Whatever the obstacles faced by reformist clergy their genuine concern to transform the Irish church and society cannot be doubted and is attested in a range of hitherto unexploited sources this volume draws upon Marie Therese Flanagan is Professor of Medieval History at the Queen s University of Belfast The Irish Ecclesiastical Record ,1891
