Miller,2012-09-19 Designed to prepare students to plan implement report on and evaluate research on human development the Fourth Edition of this classic textbook covers current and emerging issues in the field of developmental psychology research With a focus on the whole human lifespan Miller presents an overview of the methods needed to successfully conduct developmental research Comprehensive in his approach Miller covers traditional as well as new topics in the field including cross cultural research animal research autobiographical memory and peer relations Indeed Miller explores every step in the research process from the initial concept to the final written result covering the conceptual aspects of experimental design as well as the procedural skills necessary to translate design into research Key Features Up to date discussions of relevant and emerging issues and topics in developmental psychology including infant cognition attachment theory of mind child rearing applied developmental science and more Student friendly design and engaging approach Extended coverage of important contemporary topics with new chapter boxes additional tables figures and photos New and updated pedagogical tools including 16 new end of chapter exercises chapter ending summaries a glossary citation of further sources and relevant websites for numerous topics Expanded coverage of qualitative research and applied research formerly combined in one chapter each of these topics now has a dedicated chapter Expanded coverage of adolescence issues Book jacket Report of the President of Harvard College and Reports of Departments Harvard University,1902 The Social Challenge of Ageing David Hobman,2024-05-10 Although all recorded societies have contained a few people of extreme old age they have been the exception rather than the rule The possibility of one fifth of the total population in retirement from active employment would have been unthinkable at the beginning of the twentieth century and even social planning in the 1970s had made no adequate provision for a society in which one in every twenty five people would be over seventy five and one in every hundred over eighty five within less than a decade In Great Britain in the 1970s however and in many industrialised societies this was now a reality and vast resources would need to be directed towards the support care and treatment of the aged Whilst a growing body of knowledge based upon biological and clinical studies of the ageing process had been accumulated in recent years only a modest investment had been made in social gerontology Originally published in 1978 this book provided a multi disciplinary study of the process of ageing for those in the caring professions as well as for planners and architects whose decisions and designs affected the lives of the elderly It is divided into three parts the first provides a sociological demographic and cultural background to the place of old people in eastern and western societies The second explores the relationship which exists or should exist between a number of professional disciplines and part three considers an interdisciplinary model in practice Today it can be read in its historical context Annual Reports of the President and Treasurer of Harvard College Harvard University,1902 Biomedical
