Conservation of Genetic Resources in Tropical Forest Management R. H. Kemp,Gene Namkoong,Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Frank Howard Wadsworth,1993-01-01 The nature of forest genetic resources Impacts of management in production forests The future of tropical forests Strategies for in situ conservation in production forests Case studies Ghana Brazil the Amazon forests India the Western Ghat forests Karnataka Capacity Building for the Planning, Assessment and Systematic Observations of Forests Karan Deo Singh,2013-04-18 This book is intended to support the forestry institutions in the tropical countries in the planning assessment and systematic observation of forests required to fulfill their obligations as laid in international conventions such as the CBD and UNFCCC Following the Rio Conference a number of countries donors and international organizations have implemented capacity building projects with varying degrees of success One main reason for the varying success rates seems to lie in the design of technical assistance programs which have been formulated on the traditional lines of mainly generating forest resources information or transferring technology whereas Agenda 21 requires fundamental changes in countries institutions and approaches to planning and implementing the conservation and sustainable development of forests through a process of continuing research and analysis The book is intended to serve the basic needs of national planning strategies and international and donor support

Estimating Biomass and Biomass Change of Tropical Forests Sandra Brown,Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,1997 Economic Assessment of Forestry Project Impacts H. M. Gregersen,Arnoldo H. Contreras,Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,1992-01-01 Management and Conservation of Closed Forests in Tropical America Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,1993-01-01 Sustainable Management of Tropical Forests in Central Africa Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2003-01-01 This publication contains 14 case studies which detail successful examples of sustainable forest management practices identified and demonstrate the evolution of the forest sector in Central Africa This is part of an initiative undertaken within the framework of the FAO Netherlands Partnership Programme and in close collaboration with regional and international organisations to highlight the numerous efforts undertaken in forest management over the last 20 years to promote all aspects of sustainable development Field Measurements for Forest Carbon Monitoring Coeli M Hoover,2008-10-20 In the summer of 2003 a workshop was held in Portsmouth NH to discuss land measurement techniques for the North American Carbon Program Over 40 scientists representing government agencies academia and nonprofit research organizations located in Canada the US and Mexico participated During the course of the workshop a number of topics were discussed with an emphasis on the following The need for an intermediate tier of carbon measurements This level of study would be more extensive than state level inventories of the US Forest Service Forest Inventory and Analysis Program but less detailed than intensive ecosystem studies sites such as those in Long Term Ecological Research network This tier would ideally provide a basis to link and scale remote sensing measurements and inventory data and supply data required to parameterize existing models see Wofsy and Harriss 2002 Denning et al 2005 The design criteria that such a network of sites should meet The network and sampling design should be standardized but flexible enough to be applied across North America The design also needs to be efficient enough to be implemented without the need for large field crews yet robust enough to provide useful information Finally the spatial scale must permit easy linkage to remotely sensed data The key variables that should be measured at each site and the frequency of measurement

Trees, forests and land use in drylands: the first global assessment Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2019-11-29 Drylands cover 41 percent of the Earth's land surface This publication presents the results of the first global assessment of trees forests and land use in these lands The assessment breaks new methodological ground it relies on the visual interpretation of freely available satellite images carried out by more than 200 experts in a series of regional workshops Using a tool called Open Foris collect Earth developed by FAO in collaboration with Google participants gathered and analysed information for more than 200 000 sample plots worldwide For each region the report summarizes the distribution of forests other wooded land and other land uses including grasslands croplands built up areas and barren land across all drylands and by aridity zone It also estimates tree canopy cover shrub cover forest type and presence of trees outside forest Indicating that the global drylands contain more than one quarter of the world's forest area and that trees are present on 31 percent of the world's dryland area the report provides a baseline for future monitoring and will support countries in their efforts to identify appropriate investments for the restoration and sustainable management of drylands

Managing Forests as Common Property J. E. M. Arnold, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1998-01-01 The purpose of this study is to bring together available information about the role of common property as a system of governance and its present relevance to forest management and use to review the historical record of common property systems that have disappeared or survived to examine the experience of selected contemporary collective management programmes in different countries and to identify the main factors that appear to determine success or failure at the present time

The World's Mangroves, 1980-2005, 2007-01-01 Mangroves commonly found along sheltered coastlines in the tropics and subtropics fulfil important socio economic and environmental functions providing wood and non wood forest products protecting shores against wind waves and water currents conserving biological diversity protecting coral reefs sea grass beds and shipping lanes against siltation and providing habitat spawning grounds and nutrients for a variety of fish and shellfish including many commercial species High population pressure in coastal areas has however led to the conversion of many mangrove areas to other uses The world s mangroves 1980 2005 prepared in the framework of the Global Forest Resources Assessment 2005 provides comprehensive information on the current and past extent of mangroves in all countries and territories in which they exist This information as well as the gaps in information that come to light in the report will assist mangrove managers and policy and decision makers worldwide in ensuring the conservation management and sustainable use of the world s remaining mangrove ecosystems Forestry Policies in the Caribbean ,1998 Forest Resources Assessment 1990 Forest Resources Assessment 1990 Project,1996-01-01 Timber Plantations in the Humid Tropics of Africa Bernard Dupuy,G.
