Studying Boundary Conflicts: A Theoretical Framework. By Sven Tägil, Kristian Gerner, Göran Henrikson, Rune Johansson, Ingmar Oldberg and Kim Salomon. (Lund, Sweden: Esselte Studium, 1977. Pp. 215. Price not listed.)

At first glance a study of boundary conflicts might portend a rather dry, hyperfactual approach to the subject. Happily, such expectations are not borne out in this book, for its treatment of boundary conflicts is both analytical and abstract. This volume is the first in a series of studies of boundary conflicts in Europe during the period between the First and Second World Wars. As the first book in this series, its primary orientation is toward epistemology and theory.

The authors define the goals of their project as expanding "knowledge of the problems of boundary conflicts and offering explanations for the courses of action pursued by individuals and groups in such conflicts" (p. 12). As a research site for pursuing these goals, the authors choose five boundary conflicts taking place in the critical pre-Second World War era. The reasons for choosing this particular area and time have to do not only with the availability of data, but more importantly with the prominence of boundaries in European politics during this period. Following the end of the First World War many European boundaries were redrawn with the goal of making nations as homogeneous as possible. As the authors note, the ethnically mixed character of populations in several areas made it impossible to achieve this goal. Subsequently, tensions did arise in these areas, tensions which were subject to manipulation and escalation by local and national political leaders. Against this background the authors are intent upon understanding the nature of these local conflicts and also of evaluating the extent to which they contributed to the occurrence of the Second World War.

To direct their investigation, the authors establish a theoretical framework, the most important elements of which are their epistemological assumptions, conception of conflict and the factors they hypothesize will explain the emergence and developments of the conflicts. The epistemological position adopted by the authors is that human beings act in accordance with perceived reality. Conflict emerges when actors perceive that their goals are incompatible with other actors with whom they must interact. However, in explaining the main variables in the theoretical framework the authors clearly recognize that goal-directed behavior, even though affected by perceptions, must also be shaped and constrained by the administrative, socioeconomic and cultural systems in which the actors are located.

While it is appropriate to begin a research report—particularly one which will cover several volumes—with an explanation of the project's theoretical position, at this point it would also have been helpful for the authors to have been more generous with a substantive account of the various boundary conflicts so that the theoretical arguments could be tied more systematically to the data. There is also another, larger aspect of the research which needs to be addressed. Throughout the world, and across time, how frequently do boundary disputes occur? How frequently do they result in violence? How do the cases considered in the present study relate to other boundary conflicts? Without a consideration of questions such as these, the case studies will ultimately stand in isolation, and one may wonder then if five isolated case studies are really worth the impressive theoretical structure contained in this book.

Poverty: Wealth of Mankind. By Albert Tévoédjrè. (New York and London: Pergamon Press, 1979. Pp. iv + 182. $22.00, cloth; $11.00, paper.)

One hundred years ago, Proudhon proposed resolving the rich-poor dichotomy through removal of the poverty component of the relationship. Today the reverse surgical operation is being advocated by the Deputy Director-General of the ILO and Director of the International Institute of Social Studies. Albert Tévoédjrè, a citizen of Benin who is also a professor of political science at the Sorbonne, argues that the solution to the major issues of the end of this century will depend on a massive return to socioeconomic and political systems in which individuals' poverty provides the basis for collective wealth and well-being, to be achieved through the social control of needs.

The Changing Faces of Federalism Sergio Ortino, Mitja

Zagar,Vojtech Mastny,2005 This book discusses the tradition and the institutions of federalism in the Eastern Central and Western European countries and deals with many innovative issues such as multi level governance network government devolution subsidiarity asymmetry and functionalism An assumption of the book is that the European enlargement and the new European constitution could result in two major evolutions in the future one is a full federal state the other is an institutional response to the effects of the technological innovations of our epoch From Environmental to

Comprehensive Security Arthur H. Westing,2013-07-01 This work presents the evolution of the traditional concept of national security as military security to additionally embrace environmental security and then necessarily also social societal security thence to be termed comprehensive human security It accomplishes this primarily by presenting 11 of the author s own benchmark papers published between 1983 and 2010 additionally providing bibliographic citations to a further 36 of the author s related publications during that period The work stresses the importance of transfrontier regional cooperation and also recognizes global overpopulation as a key impediment to achieving comprehensive human security Navigating

Boundaries: A Comprehensive Study of Postcolonial Theory and Literature ,2025-02-25 Navigating Boundaries A Comprehensive Study of Postcolonial Theory and Literature delves into the intricate area of postcolonial discourse amplifying the voices emerging from the margins challenging dominant narratives while exploring the themes of identity mimicry hybridity power and resistance Drawing from key theorists such as Edward Said Homi K Bhabha Frantz Fanon Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak Philip G Altbach Deepesh Chakravarthy Chandra Talpade Mohanty Gauri Viswanathan etc this book offers a deep investigation into the multiple aspects of theoretical frameworks that shape postcolonial discourse The analysis moves seamlessly from theory to literature investigating how postcolonial literary texts navigate critical issues such as hybridity mimicry identity and resistance A vital resource for students research scholars teachers and anyone curious about the dynamic field of postcolonial theory and literature this book calls readers to reflect question and join the discourse on the complex narratives that continue to shape our world Generally most of the postcolonial critiques explore linguistic imperialism but this book makes a groundbreaking contribution by foregrounding the use of vernacular languages in literary texts and critical theory positing that this is not just an aesthetic choice but a form of resistance and identity reclamation In doing so it echoes Ng g wa Thiong o s call for linguistic decolonization and applies it in a broader more diverse context examining how the act of writing in local languages disrupts colonial power dynamics and fosters cultural preservation While much of postcolonial criticism tends to centre on broad historical and political analysis Navigating Boundaries emphasizes the multiple voices coming from Africa Caribbean and South Asia offering a more intimate look at identity formation in postcolonial settings Moreover the book s interdisciplinary approach strengthens its position in the field By weaving in cultural studies sociology and psychological perspectives on gender trauma ethnicity and memory it opens up fresh pathways making the work relevant not just for literary scholars but for those interested in a wider discourse on postcolonial theory
