Samuel 1934 1996 in relation to his distinctive form of activist politics as they developed from youthful Cold War communism to the first British New Left 1960s radicalism to the 1980s history wars As the catalyst behind the History Workshop movement Samuel championed the democratisation of history making and practised an eclectic form of people s history in his own work His unique approach was controversial drawing impassioned responses from across the ideological spectrum the most sustained critique often coming from his left wing contemporaries It is argued here that this compelling figure has been unjustly neglected and that he continues to offer important insights into the politics of history making in a post Marxist world

Rethinking German History (Routledge Revivals) Richard J. Evans, 2015-08-11 In Rethinking German History first published in 1987 Richard J Evans argues for a social historical approach to the German past that pays equal attention to objective social structures and subjective values and experiences If German history has been seen as an exception to the normal development of Western society this is not least because historians have until recently largely failed to look beyond the world of high politics institutions organizations and ideologies to broader historical problems of German society and German mentalities By applying and adapting approaches learned from French and British social history as they have been developed over the last quarter of a century it is possible to achieve a rethinking of German history which does away with many of the textbook myths that have encrusted the historiography of Germany for so long This book will be valuable for students of German history and politics and brings together essays widely used in teaching Its broad coverage of social history will also be useful to all those interested in contemporary historiography or the comparative study of European history

Structures and

Transformations in Modern British History David Feldman, Jon Lawrence, 2011-01-20 This major collection of essays challenges many of our preconceptions about British political and social history from the late eighteenth century to the present. Inspired by the work of Gareth Stedman Jones, twelve leading scholars explore both the long-term structures, social, political, and intellectual of modern British history and the forces that have transformed those structures at key moments. The result is a series of insightful original essays presenting new research within a broad historical context. Subjects covered include the consequences of rapid demographic change in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, the forces shaping transnational networks, especially those between Britain and its empire, and the recurrent problem of how we connect cultural politics to social change. An introductory essay situates Stedman Jones's work within the broader historiographical trends of the past thirty years, drawing important conclusions about new directions for scholarship in the twenty-first century.

On the Frontiers of History Tessa Morris-Suzuki, 2020-08-17 Why is it that we so readily accept the boundary lines drawn around nations or around regions like Asia as though they were natural and self-evident when in fact they are so mutable and often so very arbitrary? What happens to people not only when the borders they seek to cross become heavily guarded but also when new borders are drawn straight through the middle of their lives? The essays in this book address these questions by starting from small places on the borderlands of East Asia and looking outwards from the small towards the large, asking what these minor pasts tell us about the grand narratives of history. In the process, it takes the reader on a journey from Renaissance European visions of Tartary through nineteenth-century racial theorising, imperial cartography, and indigenous experiences of modernity to contemporary debates about Big History in an age of environmental crisis.

Presenting the Past Susan Porter Benson, Stephen Brier, Roy Rosenzweig, 1986 In recent years, history has been increasingly popularized through television docudramas, history museums, paperback historical novels, grassroots community history projects, and other public representations of historical knowledge. This collection of lively and accessible essays is the first examination of the rapidly growing field called public history. Based in part on articles written for the Radical History Review, these eighteen original essays take a sometimes irreverent look at how history is presented to the public in such diverse settings as children's books, Colonial Williamsburg, and the Statue of Liberty. Presenting the Past is organized into three areas which consider the role of mass media: Packaging the Past, the affects of applied history, Professionalizing the Past, and the importance of grassroots efforts to shape historical consciousness. Politicizing the Past: The first section examines the large-scale production and dissemination of popular history by mass culture. The contributors criticize many of these Hollywood and Madison Avenue productions that promote historical amnesia or affirm dominant values and institutions. Professionalizing the Past: the authors show how non-university-based professional historians have also affected popular historical consciousness through their work in museums, historic preservation corporations, and government agencies. Finally, the book considers what has been labeled people's history: oral history projects, slide shows, films, and local exhibits, and assesses its attempts to reach such diverse constituents as workers ethnic groups women and gays Of essential interest to students of history Presenting the Past also explains to the general reader how Americans have come to view themselves their ancestors and their heritage through the influence of mass media popular culture and public history Author note Susan Porter Benson is Associate Professor and Chair of History at Bristol Community College in Massachusetts Stephen Brier is Director of the American Social History Project and Senior Research Scholar at the Graduate Center City University of New York Roy Rosenzweig is Associate Professor of History and Director of the Oral History Program at George Mason University in Virginia

Sustainable Utopias Jennifer L. Allen, 2022-03-08 To reclaim a sense of hope for the future German activists in the late twentieth century engaged ordinary citizens in innovative projects that resisted alienation and disenfranchisement By most accounts the twentieth century was not kind to utopian thought The violence of two world wars Cold War anxieties and a widespread sense of crisis after the 1973 global oil shock appeared to doom dreams of a better world The eventual victory of capitalism and seemingly liberal democracy relieved some fears but exchanged them for complacency and cynicism Not however in West Germany Jennifer Allen showcases grassroots activism of the 1980s and 1990s that envisioned a radically different society based on community centered politics a society in which the democratization of culture and power ameliorated alienation and resisted the impotence of end of history narratives Berlin s History Workshop liberated research from university confines by providing opportunities for ordinary people to write and debate the story of the nation The Green Party made the politics of direct democracy central to its program Artists changed the way people viewed and acted in public spaces by installing objects in unexpected environments including the Stolpersteine paving stones embedded in residential sidewalks bearing the names of Nazi victims These activists went beyond just trafficking in ideas They forged new infrastructures spaces and behaviors that gave everyday people real agency in their communities Undergirding this activism was the environmentalist concept of sustainability which demanded that any alternative to existing society be both enduring and adaptable A rigorous but inspiring tale of hope in action Sustainable Utopias makes the case that it is still worth believing in human creativity and the labor of citizenship
